Frank A. Munsey, in deep grief and big letters, pulls this on the front page of his New York Herald:

A HUNDRED BILLIONS OF DOLLARS BEFORE WE ARE OUT OF DEBT, AND NOW CONGRESS PROPOSES TO MULCT US FOR FIVE BILLIONS MORE FOR THE BONUS.

The figures are correct enough, but the wailing is not. If it was worth one hundred billions, principal and interest, to win the war, is 5 per cent. of the amount too much for the men that won it? Five billions is 5 per cent. of a hundred billions. Munsey would give 5 per cent. for any important service. It's low interest. He pays advertising agents 15 per cent. Prosperity calls the soldier a hero in time of trouble, and a damned nuisance afterward.

In Chicago every day 2,500 women, from girlhood to grandmotherhood, have their hair bobbed. In factories, on Atlantic City's boardwalk, in Hollywood, Palm Beach and Brooklyn, everywhere, more and more hair is bobbed. Some merchants, clergymen and others protest, but not wisely. Long hair is a nuisance.

It was useful twelve thousand years ago, in the stone age, to cover the young baby's head resting on the mother's shoulder. It is useful here and there as a handle for an angry husband. Men believe they think it beautiful, but Freud can prove that's imagination.

If long hair goes, it may take foolish hats and dresses with it. When men wore long hair they dressed foolishly. Bobbed hair will save time. Every woman could read Plato in the time she wastes twisting around her finger wisps of hair pulled from her comb and deposited in a paper cornucopia to be made later into a rat, "all my own hair."

If every woman read Plato she would know enough to have her children after thirty, and select a father old enough to have a brain full grown, not a mere fox trot record. Time is our only possession. Bobbed hair saves it—bob your hair. But then forget it, as men do, don't fuss over it.

Many a King, Emperor, Czar, Sultan, Pharaoh has found ruling made easy by religion. Simon men learned that crowds could be frightened by threats or charmed with promises About that "hereafter, ruling has been easier. "I must have a spiritual gendarmerie," said Napoleon.

England's Emperor-King, mild person, hangs on to India, thanks to religion, to religious hate in this case.

About seventy million Mohammedans and 215,000,000 Hindus divide India's man power. Mohammedan followers are fighters, therefore stronger.

The Mohammedans eat meat, and devour, when they can get her, the cow, sacred to the Hindus. With 70,000,000 eating the cow and 215,000,000 worshiping that cow, King George rules while his subjects hate. It's all for the best, possibly. Hindus that worship a cow and Mohammedans that believe in Mohammedan miracles are hardly fit to rule themselves.

Northcliffe speaks of Japan's "smiling war party," excellent description. Always smiling, bowing, never sleeping, the Japanese will make us think some day.

Northcliffe wonders what we are going to do about "the three thousand Philippines islands, with their eighty languages."

The Washington conference, just ended, did what it could to hand those islands over to Japan by guaranteeing not to strengthen their fortifications.

At that conference, by the way, you didn't hear anything about England leaving unfortified Gibraltar, the great rock that gives her control of the Mediterranean, enabling her, if she chooses, to forbid France, Italy, Greece, Turkey and all the Balkans to send any ships out into the Atlantic. Regulating poor old Uncle Sam was the job there, and it went through, well greased.

One Congressman demands a press agent for the House. Newspapers do not tell what happens in Congress, says he. They do tell when anything happens. Unfortunately, things rarely do happen in the cloak room, committee rooms and lobbies. Newspapers would print names of paymasters back of certain legislation, but the names are guessework. Congressman says, "I were to invite some member to go outside and settle a dispute, it would be printed in big letters." Yes, that would be news.

Congress needs an advertising agent, not a press agent. An advertising agent would tell Congressmen what to say to command attention. A Senate man who has obeyed the boss lands in Congress, and is annoyed that newspapers refuse to consider him a big man overnight. It did not take Hiram Johnson long to make people know he was in the Senate. No boss sent him there.

What is more important than a Congressman whining for a press agent is the fact that 108,000,000 people are represented by men that so rarely say or do anything worth reporting.

BLUEBEARD LANDRU IS GUILLOTINED

Sims, Seeking Honors, Sneers at Navy Dept.

UNABLE TO COPE WITH WAR, HE CLAIMS

Conditions Would Not Be Tolerated If Exposed, Admiral Says in Speech

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 25.—"The Navy Department has the same organization now that it had during the war, and with such an organization you can neither prepare for war nor fight a war," declared Rear Admiral W. S. Sims in an address here.

An organization such as that in the Navy Department, Admiral Sims said, would not be tolerated were the public enlightened as to what he termed the true conditions. Newspapers, he said, should hire military experts to write on naval and other problems of national defence.

Sims Likely to Be Disciplined for Scheme

Washington, Feb. 25.—Rear Admiral Sims' knowledge and approval, and apparent support of the scheme to perfect a nation-wide propaganda organization to boost him for elevation to the rank of full admiral, as disclosed by the Hearst newspapers, makes the British-born officer amenable again to discipline by the Navy Department, it was stated by naval authorities.

Sims' offence comes especially under article 95 of the printed regulations of the navy, it was stated. This article provides that no officer of the navy shall seek legislation of any kind from Congress "except with the consent and knowledge of the Secretary of the Navy." Sims could be elevated only by a special act of Congress.

NO OFFICIAL SANCTION.

The operations of Rear Admiral Sims and his friends and agents certainly are being pushed without the knowledge of the Secretary of the Navy or Assistant Secretary. Moreover, it is pointed out that the movement to advance the personal interests of Sims is to influence a policy of the navy, and this has been prohibited personally by all secretaries of the navy from time immemorial.

Intense indignation at the purpose of the Sims propaganda movement and profound disgust with the methods employed and the extreme vanity displayed by the officer in sanctioning the scheme were expressed at the Capitol.

The latter feature of the case, it was pointed out, placed Rear Admiral Sims in a most ludicrous position and subjected him to end to any possible chance he might have had to obtain the coveted honor.

CONDEMNED BY LAWMAKERS.

Those members of the Senate and House who did not desire to comment upon the matter for quotation, privately were strong in condemnation of the whole scheme. Many suggestions were heard that it was properly a matter for the Navy Department to look into to determine whether or not the rear admiral had been guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer of the navy.

Secretary Denby declined to take seriously Rear Admiral Sims' aspiration to hold the rank which has been bestowed upon only three officers in the entire history of the navy—Farragut, Porter and Dewey. The Secretary explained that, of course, he was not officially advised as to the facts and, therefore, could not make any statement, but he added:

"If something should develop demanding consideration, attention will be given to it."

Mr. Denby thought the failure of the Sims' representative, as disclosed in the published correspondence, to obtain his approval of the proposed promotion, "would be an excellent place to drop the matter."

GUNMAN OF 9 MUST RETURN HIS LOOT

Cap-Pistol Bandit Ordered to Disgorge $1.16 by Somerville Judge

The most diminutive "gunman" ever to be brought to justice in Massachusetts appeared before Judge Sturtevant in the Juvenile Session of the Somerville Court today.

The youngster, who gave his age as nine years, but who did not look to be more than six, admitted being one of the boys who held up fellow-year-old Kenneth Coffin on the Somerville avenue bridge and robbed him of $1.16. They used a Fourth of July cap pistol in the affair, the youngster said.

Judge Sturtevant, requesting that the youngster's name not be used, adjudged him a delinquent child and ordered him to make restitution, continuing the case for final settlement to March 13. The other "bandit," who was eleven years old, is now in a State home.

POPE RAISES VOICE AGAINST ROMAN DUELS

Rome, Feb. 25.—A mad wave of duelling, of a fury unknown for decades past, is sweeping the ranks of Roman aristocracy. The clash of thrusted sabres has mounted into such a deafening chorus of hate that even the sacred walls of the Vatican have been penetrated. The new Pope, Pius XI, is said to have raised his voice in protest, admonishing the members of the aristocracy to respect the laws prohibiting duelling.

DAISY DAY SALE WILL REACH HALF MILLION

Demand for Blossoms to Aid American Legion Drive Surpasses All Expectations

More than half a million daisies will be sold before the Daisy Day drive ends, if the expectations of the American Legion officials pan out.

The original order of 150,000 daisies has been trebled and that additional order may have to be increased before today is finished.

The shortage of workers, one of the serious handicaps experienced yesterday, the first day of the drive, was eliminated, for scores of men, women and girls volunteered their services today.

There was little need for hawking the daisies, as everybody who knew what the drive was for bought readily—almost eagerly.

In spite of the shortage of workers, caused by the failure of organizations to fill their promised quotas, so great was the demand for daisies that as early as 9 o'clock yesterday morning many of the outlying towns had sent in requests for more flowers, saying their supply was exhausted.

The heaviest demand was in the downtown section. One worker at the Park street subway entrance sold 1,200 blossoms between 7:30 and 8:45 a. m., and the demand increased as the day grew older.

BONUS MEN RENEW FIGHT

Committee Members Will Lay Sales Tax Facts Before Harding

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Republicans of the House Ways and Means Committee were prepared today to tell President Harding that they could not accept his recommendation for a sales tax to pay the soldiers' bonus and to ask for further instructions.

It is their hope that the President will retire from the position of "no sales tax—no bonus" and will give his approval to the passage of a bonus bill as a charge against the treasury to be paid through economies effected in the army and navy and in other government departments.

PAY FROM TREASURY?

Having tentatively rejected every suggested tax plan for the bonus the majority of the Ways and Means Committee opened work today to observe the effect of such action on their House colleagues.

The abandonment of direct taxation as a means of raising bonus revenue contemplates that the compensation must be paid from treasury receipts under existing laws left over from ordinary expenditures saved by cutting appropriations or by extraordinary revenues such as interest payments on the foreign indebtedness to the United States.

CONFIDENT OF BONUS.

There were few members of Congress today who declared in favor of delaying the bonus legislation beyond the present session of Congress. Chairman Fordney of the Ways and Means Committee and Representative Frear, Republican, of Wisconsin, chief opponents of any form of sales tax, were equally insistent that the long delayed bonus bill would be passed by the House during the present session.

PHILIPPINES TO EXPORT 300,000 TONS OF SUGAR

Manila, P. I., Jan. 10 (By Mail).—The production of sugar for export from the Philippines this season is estimated at 300,000 tons of centrifugal and 100,000 tons of Muscovado by the Sugar News. R. Renton Hind, editor of the Sugar News and general manager of one of the largest sugar mills in the islands, thinks that many of the sugar mills will make a profit this season despite the low current price of 2½ cents a pound.

BLUEBEARD LANDRU IS EXECUTED

Slayer of 10 Women and a Boy Pays for Crimes on Guillotine

By International News Service.

Versailles, France, Feb. 25.—At dawn today Henri Landru, France's arch-murderer, was beheaded on the guillotine before the gate of St. Pierre prison.

He had been found guilty on November 30 of the murder of ten women, to whom he had made love and offered marriage, and a boy, the son of one of his feminine victims. Landru protested his innocence to the very end.

"I will be brave," were the last words he uttered just before the knife fell.

It was eight minutes after 6 when Landru's head rolled from the execution block. He carried with him into the great beyond his secret of the missing women he was convicted of killing for their savings.

A crowd of morbidly curious persons, including numerous women, had gathered before the guillotine before daybreak.

STARED INTO CROWD.

Promptly at 6 o'clock the bugler in the neighboring barracks began to blow reveille. Landru had been awake since 4 o'clock. When he was led before the gate he stared into the crowd but if he was looking for his real wife and children he was disappointed. They were not present.

At fifteen minutes after 5 o'clock a little group of prison officials entered Landru's cell and told him to prepare for the end. The condemned man's hands were tied behind his back, and his feet were loosely hobbled.

He took these indignities cheerfully and pleasantly.

As is customary, in France, Lan-

Claims He Is Dewey's Son; Placed Under Observation

Snickers ran through the courtroom of Judge Bolster in the municipal court today when a tall, thin individual announced that he was George Custer Dewey, youngest son of the late Admiral Dewey, and grandson of General Custer."

The snickers grew to open laughter, despite the raps of the judge, when the stranger stepped up to Probation Officer Eddie Bromberg, gripped his hand and said:

"I used to know you in the days when you were on the old City Council and I was a member of the State Legislature."

Then the Court sent the stranger to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation. A charge of drunkenness went on file.

CURLEY OPENS FIGHT FOR LOWER NEW ENGLAND FREIGHT CHARGES

SYSTEM IS ATTACKED BY MAYOR

should be corrected at once. A committee interested in the development of the industry and commerce of New England are prepared to present the facts at such time as you may designate to the New England delegation in Congress, believing that through the united action of the New England representation in Congress immediate relief will be possible. Will you kindly wire me when it will be agreeable for you to have our committee wait upon your meeting of New England Representatives at Washington?

JAMES M. CURLEY,
Mayor.

Mayor Curley has kept up the fight for a correction in the rate of differentials for the port of Boston since his election and, previous to his taking office, he was instrumental in obtaining the sending of two ships to this port for the loading of grain for Russian ports.

MORE SHIPPING HERE.

As a matter of fact, there has been more activity shown on the waterfront during the past four weeks than there has been since the war. Four ships are already loading grain and two more are expected most any day.

The Mayor's fight for representation at Washington a few weeks ago bore fruit with the assignment of the above ships. That he will keep up his fight for the development of the port as a shipping centre of all New England is easily foreseen.

Mayor Curley believes that Massachusetts deserves some consideration if only because of the amount of taxes paid to the Federal government. He also points out the low handling charges that prevail here and the exceptional facilities which, he declares, constitute sufficient argument to overcome the railroad differential objection.

At present all of the grain shipment, or a greater portion of it, is going to other ports. Montreal ships a good portion; points farther South, such as New York and Baltimore, also handle a large quantity.

The freight rates from the West have put Boston out of commission as an export port.

And this is just what the Mayor is fighting for. Instead of letting the port of Boston become extinct he insists that the New England delegation, both in the Senate and the national House, take action at once in the differential fight.

Last month the Mayor sent telegrams to Senator David I. Walsh and Henry Cabot Lodge offering to raise $12,500 by popular subscription in the city on condition that 5,000,000 bushels of grain be shipped from the port of Boston. This amount was to be paid for the difference in the rate.

He was successful in this fight and the officials in Washington said that it was not necessary to raise this amount and that a ship would be sent. Two ships have been sent since, but the Mayor still wants to get the differential modified at this port, so that there will be a number of such vessels taking grain and other exports out of Boston.

AT LOWEST EBB.

As the Mayor has pointed out, the State was never more powerfully represented in Washington, and yet, commercially, Boston is at its lowest ebb. Boston has large grain elevators which can handle millions of bushels of wheat and corn. These elevators are practically empty, and this should not be so for every condition is favorable to the exportation of such amounts, and the only obstacle is the differential rate.

In other words, "Boston Means Business," and the Mayor is waging this fight himself for a correction of the present rate. His new Commercial, Industrial and Publicity Bureau established a few days ago in City Hall will already launch several plans whereby the port may be relieved.

Immediately upon receiving a reply from his telegram to Senator Lodge, the Mayor will send the minority to Washington and place all the facts before the delegation there.

Regan told the court that Stresnick has five small children and no money. The minimum fine of $50 was imposed.

PETITION TO CONGRESS

For Action on Soldiers' Bonus With Sales Tax to Pay It

WE respectfully petition Congress to pass the soldiers' bonus act without further delay and also to levy a sales tax to obtain the money to pay the bonus, for the following reasons:

FIRST: Public opinion throughout the United States is undeniably in favor of the soldiers' bonus as shown by the decisive majority in every State in which a popular referendum has been taken: in Maine by 3 to 1; New Jersey by 3½ to 1; New York nearly 2 to 1; Rhode Island 5 to 1; Wisconsin 3 to 1; Oregon 2 to 1; Washington 2½ to 1, and so on.

SECOND: We believe that Congress if permitted to vote on the soldiers' bonus bill will favor it with even greater unanimity, regardless of party, than the popular majority by which the people in twenty-two States have already approved it; we believe that the soldiers' bonus cannot and ought not to be defeated and that the longer it is postponed, the greater the injustice.

THIRD: We believe the new tax scheme proposed by the Ways and Means Committee is only a little less objectionable than Secretary Mellon's proposal for three cent postage and for a new three-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline. Proponents of such taxes oppose any soldiers' bonus whatever and hope by linking it with such new destructive and unpopular taxes to kill the proposition altogether.

FOURTH: If the soldiers' bonus is not only right, but inevitable, and if the United States is not to be behind England, France, Italy, Canada and Australia, which have already paid liberal soldiers' bonuses, then our payment is already long overdue, not as a debt (for our debt to the soldiers can never be paid), but as a just tribute to the valor and the sacrifice of the men who won the war.

FIFTH: The only question that remains is: By what system of taxation shall the money be raised? Not by bond issues, because it is against the traditional policy of the United States to increase debt in time of peace. Not by any irritating, unreasonable or destructive tax on individuals, business or industry, because we already have too many such taxes. A small general sales tax will raise more than enough to pay the soldiers' bonus. It will bear heavily on no one. If the experience of Canada and our own Philippine islands, where the sales tax is in operation, is repeated, the system will meet with such favor that it will become one of the approved methods of raising necessary revenue after the soldiers' bonus has been paid.

'HURRY BONUS,' IS PLEA OF VETERANS

And still they come.

Hundreds of signatures.

Scores of letters.

All applauding the campaign of the Hearst newspapers for the passage by Congress of a soldiers' bonus bill to be paid by a sales tax.

It is almost strange the similarity between these letters from former service men, fathers, wives, their widows, their children, their relatives and their friends.

Some of them are poorly written, mis-spelled, almost unreadable.

But every one of them contains a human touch.

Every mail to the Bonus Editor brings new light on the desperate need of some of these men who left their jobs and entered the service of their country when the call came.

TYPES OF LETTERS.

Here is one that is a type of many others:

"Dear Mr. Editor—I am a former service man, in World War veteran with a wife and child to support. I am not working and have not been able to get a job for months. If there is anything I need it is a cash bonus. It can't come along too quick."

Edward William Connor of Lowell writes "as a friend of the speedy passage of the bonus bill."

That the strain of hunting in vain for a job is beginning to tell is plain, in a letter which is by "Friend of the Service Man." He says:

IDLE A YEAR.

"I have done no work in the last year, not because I don't work, but because I've got so disgusted looking for it that I just prayed to God to hasten the day that this great country will do something for civilization instead of letting things drift back into the darg ages.

"I know former service men who can't go to church on Sunday because their clothes are in such a state and I would not be welcomed in a ballroom myself.

"This country, I understand, has more than half of the world's gold supply. Let us have no more of this 'sidling' the public into believing that a bonus would ruin business. When pay checks get back to a certain level this country will become one of the most prosperous times it ever had.

"Thousands of ex-service men have not worked for months. To these and millions like them, what difference would it make if Europe was 100 time as poor as it is. We earn nothing now and would make at least half that much if business took a slump.

State Bonus Given Only to Massachusetts Citizens

Editor Boston American:

Will you please send me through the daily edition of your paper, of which I am a constant reader, if I am entitled to a bonus from Massachusetts. During the late war, although not a citizen of Massachusetts, I was inducted into the S. A. T. C. at Holy Cross College, and served nine months. Under such circumstances, am I entitled to a bonus, and if so, who should I refer to? Thank you.

A. J. M.

The Massachusetts gratuity was granted only to such persons as were legal residents of Massachusetts for a period of not less than six months immediately prior to their entrance into the service. The fact of a person attending school in Massachusetts would not make him a legal resident, and therefore not entitled to the State bonus.—Editor.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Feb. 25.—George E. Long, veteran clerk in the War Department and, according to the police, confessed author of the blackmail letters recently received by Henry White, former Ambassador to France, and several women prominent in Washington society, was tendering to the needs of a seriously ill wife and his three children at their home today, to which he was permitted to return after the alleged confession was drawn from him at police headquarters yesterday.

No complaint had been lodged against him today for sending the letters, which demanded large sums of money under threat of death, and the police said none would be filed unless those who received the letters showed a disposition to press the case.

The authorship of the letters was traced by a peculiarity in the handwriting, police said, and by a watermark used in War Department stationery.

Long, according to the police, said: "I don't know why I wrote the letters; but I was anxious to get my children of the city provided for and I thought these rich people might help."

He added; the police said, that he never went to the address he had directed the money to be sent and "would not have touched it."

Long formerly was a confidential secretary to Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, who commanded the New England division in France.

MILL WORKERS SEE AID FROM ARBITER

By International News Service.

Providence, Feb. 25.—A statement issued today by Judge Hahn, chairman of Governor San Souci's conciliation board, was interpreted by striking Rhode Island textile workers and their sympathizers as an indication that the board favors the operatives in the present industrial dispute.

Judge Hahn said that textile conditions to those in Fall River, where he said every mill is operating at full time and paying higher wages than those being paid in Rhode Island. He said a better perception of workers own their own homes in the Massachusetts.

Judge Hahn said he attributed the industrial harmony in Fall River to the fact that the employers and employes meet twice a year in conferences.

Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers, appeared at the conciliation board meeting today. He declared the strikers welcomed a public investigation, but wanted nothing to do with a "Star Chamber" affair. He said he has evidence that will show Rhode Island manufacturers are using an inferior grade of cotton.

Judge Hahn indicated he intended to determine the manufacturers' attitude towards a public investigation.

PELLETIER AND COAKLEY CASES TO BE PUSHED

Boston Bar Association Counsel Acts to Hasten Trials for Disbarment

Counsel for the Boston Bar Association today took further steps to hasten trial of the disbarment cases against former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier and Attorney Daniel H. Coakley.

It was announced on good authority that an attempt was being made to get the Coakley case at least on the Supreme Court trial list next week.

The success of this move depends upon two contingencies—whether a single justice can be spared for the disbarment trials with such a congested docket and whether the Pelletier-Coakley petitions shall be tried jointly or separately.

As the major charges apply to both, some of the attorneys in the camp of Attorney-General J. Weston Allen think that joint trial would save time.

RUGG TO DECIDE.

This matter will have to be decided by Chief Justice Rugg. Attorneys James J. McCarthy, Robert G. Dodge and Andrew Marshall have been busy since Thomas C. O'Brien was named as Pelletier's successor to serve the unexpired term of a year, making arrangements for the disbarment trials.

They conferred with Attorney-General Allen and his assistants. Attorney McCarthy was one of the first to call on Chief Attorney O'Brien after he assumed control of the office.

If criminal proceedings are instituted against the accused lawyers, District Attorney O'Brien would have charge of that phase of the prosecutions.

Disbarment proceedings against William J. Corcoran and several other lawyers named in open court as alleged co-conspirators, will not be pressed until after the Pelletier-Coakley cases have been disposed of by the Supreme Court.

PELLETIER SEES REED.

Former District Attorney Pelletier was in Washington today conferring with Senator Reed, his senior counsel during the removal trial.

Mr. Pelletier told friends in New York that he expected to be disbarred and at the same time denied the report that he proposed appealing his removal to the Supreme Court of the United States. That he had retained ex-President Wilson and ex-Secretary of State Colby in connection with an appeal was a report that amazed Mr. Pelletier, who said that because of political reasons alone there would be no collaboration by Senator Reed.

The ex-district attorney believes that the bill now before the Massachusetts Legislature providing that only an attorney may be eligible for election as district attorney was aimed at him. He said that this would not deter him from the fight to bring about the election of judges by the people which he proposes to wage until successful.

Mr. Pelletier appeared to be a trifle thinner than before his trial, but looked like anything but a broken-spirited man. He reaffirmed his decision to take his "appeal" to the people all the polls.

RUTH LAW TO QUIT AS DAREDEVIL FLIER

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Life as a daring aviatrix and holder of long distance records has lost its charms for Miss Ruth Law. No more will she thrill thousands throughout the country with her life-risking feats. Miss Law has definitely decided to retire from the field of aeronautics.

Announcement of her determination was made to the International American Association of Fairs and Associations here, over which Miss Law had been performing in different parts of the country. She has been flying since 1913, when she made her first flight near Boston. Miss Law never had a serious accident.

CHICAGO ROCKED BY BIG DYNAMITE BLAST

Chicago, Feb. 25 (By International News Service).—An explosion that shook almost the entire city and an area for fifty miles around will resound when several tons of dynamite in the stone crushing plant at the Consumers Company at McCook, southwest of the city, let go.

Although the blast was one of the most terrific ever felt in this section, no one was killed and only one man injured. Property damage will resound to hundreds of thousands of dollars. Officials of the Consumers Company said that the explosion was accidental.

BLUEBEARD PAYS FOR CRIMES ON GUILLOTINE

dru signed the prison register on his way out.

To expedite the work of the executioner a high power arc light was burning in the prison court, flooding the guillotine with its heavy shadow.

APPEARED COOL.

Landru was pale, but stood erect and appeared cool. His beard had been shaved off under the chin so that the hair would not interfere with the fall of the knife. For perhaps ten seconds Landru stood still and silent facing the guillotine.

Then he hesitated, the chief executioner and his assistants forced Landru forward, bending his head upon the "abiding board." The instant the doomed man's head slid into the fateful aperture, the knife dropped and Landru's head rolled into a basket partly filled with sawdust. The whole thing took less than three minutes' time.

The alert assistants stood beside the guillotine with outstretched hands. Hardly had the murderer's head fallen into the basket before the body had been placed in a coffin.

The coffin had stood in a closed wagon beside the guillotine. The men in the crowd could hear the wagon during the decapitation, and a little group of cavalrymen, who were present to preserve order, saluted with their sabres.

Two small glasses of rum formed the last breakfast of Landru. He refused to take any solid food, saying he was beyond all need for sustenance.

Landru's last words were uttered as his body was being forced upon the execution board. He apparently spoke to himself, for the words were unheard. The scaffold was erected in Rue St. Pierre in front of the jail.

The guillotine structure was 12 feet high and the knife, a triangular affair a foot high, weighed 100 pounds.

Landru's lawyers were present, and as the condemned man was led through the prison yard he turned to the attorneys and asked to be allowed to speak with his divorced wife if she were present.

The latter affair had some of its gruesomeness through the speed with which it was enacted. The crowd hardly believed it was all over when Landru's body was being put in the casket. Even after the knife fell the crowd of women remained open-mouthed and staring. It was necessary for soldiers to force some of the people back who stood around the guillotine.

A number of persons had come to Versailles from Paris, and as the wagon containing the coffin rumbled away towards the cemetery they made a break for the railroad station to get back home.

SOCIETY WOMEN.

For a better view some of the spectators had brought stepladders to the scene. Others climbed up into trees.

The Rue St. Pierre was a scene of activity all night long with spectators arriving in carriages, motor cars and on bicycles. The street was continuously lighted up with the rays of the headlights. Some of the spectators carried blankets, camp chairs and other conveniences with not coffee or cold wine.

Just before the ceremony the soldiers took charge and massed the spectators into a rough formed hollow square. Some of the women were dressed in evening clothes and appeared to have left the ballroom for the execution. Men in evening clothes who had spent the night in the Montmartre district of Paris escorted women to the scenes.

Famous actors and actresses were in the front rank of spectators. One

FRUIT STORE MAN STUNG BY RAISED $5 BILL

Boston police today are searching for the man who gave an Elm street fruit storekeeper a $5 note which had been raised to $26 in payment for a 25-cent purchase. The man was described as being about thirty-five years old, and wearing a gray overcoat and soft hat.

SALEM OBJECTS TO RETURNING U. S. MONEY

Salem, Feb. 25.—The citizens of Salem are awaiting with keen interest the outcome of the proposal of Congressman Andrews of Nebraska that the twenty-eight States of the Union that shared in the distribution of a Government surplus totalling $25,905,000 in the year 1836 be instructed to return their proportionate share with interest.

Salem's interest centres in the fact that of the present City Hall was erected and furnished from the fund. The amount received is said to have been around $25,000. Salem citizens fear that if the state is called upon to refund this money the present generation would be called upon to pay it back in taxes. The Salem fund with interest added for eighty-six years, it is stated, would assess a burden of more than half a million dollars on the city.

Under the plan suggested by Congressman Andrews, the fund returned with interest would aid in the solution of the soldiers' bonus proposition.

The Saugus town hall was also erected from this fund.

British Hold Up Free State Bill

By International News Service.

London, Feb. 25.—The British government plans to delay final passage of the bill officially constituting the Irish Free State until after the Irish election, it was learned in Downing street today. The bill already has passed in the House of Commons upon first and second readings.

It was pointed out that if the Republicans win the Irish election the present bill probably will be useless, as the Republicans are opposed to it. With Eamon de Valera back in power in Ireland it would be necessary for the British Cabinet to open new negotiations entirely, in the opinion of British officials. Sweeping gains in Ireland in the past week make Britain unwilling to put the Irish Free State bill upon the statute books because of the loss of prestige if it is repudiated by the Irish election.

It is probable, however, that Britain will continue to retire troops from Ireland and to turn over British administrative affairs to the provisional government at Dublin.

Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, and E. J. Duggan, formerly chief liaison officer of the Irish Republican army, conferred at length with Colonial Secretary Winston Churchill, who is chairman of the government committee that is working out the details of the Irish settlement. Griffith and Duggan are among the signers of the Anglo-Irish peace treaty. All the signers were invited to London to explain the agreement reached by the hostile factions in the Ard Fheis, but only two of them came.

Griffith and Churchill were closeted for three hours. They will meet again tomorrow. Later in the day Griffith conferred at the war office upon the evacuation of British troops from Ireland.

Churchill said it was important that the government should have a clear understanding with the Sinn Fein on Irish matters. It is likely Griffith will remain in London until next week so he can confer with Premier Lloyd George, when the latter returns from France.

British officials said they were anxious to avoid a hitch with the Irish in view of the progress that already has been made in working out a settlement. It was pointed out that if Griffith believes that the Ard Fheis agreements can be carried out, the government to establish itself firmly the British government will not oppose ratification of the Irish election for three months.

PROTESTS PAPERS OF WATERTOWN CANDIDATES

Secretary Miles P. Robinson of the Watertown Republican Town Committee today filed with the Board of Registrars for the town a protest against nomination papers filed by James Thomas T. Duane, who candidates for selectman in the town election on March 6. He alleges that the nomination papers were forged on McCree's papers and that at least one signature on Colcer's papers was obtained by misrepresentation.

The body lay, was today committed to the State Hospital for the Insane at Taunton.

DEPLORES PROPOSED CUT IN NAVY PERSONNEL

Lieutenant-Commander Howard M. Lansmere of the Naval War College, speaking before the Military Order of the World War, declared that if the American navy is cut to a personnel of 80,000 men, as is now planned, it will be "a mere shell." He says that if such a cut is made, would be practically valueless from six months to one year, in case war were declared, he said.

ORPHAN GIRL, 18, SAYS SHE TOOK POISON 'TO CHEER UP FOREVER'

BEGS FOR DEATH AS RELIEF

"I wish to God I had died. I wanted to go where I could 'cheer up'—as my friends kept advising me—forever."

Tossing on her bed in Ward L of the City Hospital, where she is slowly recovering from an attack of what is believed to have been carbolic poisoning, pretty eighteen-year-old Stella Knowles today told a reporter for the Boston American how she had struggled for months in a vain effort to find work, and how she had attempted suicide when the continued failure of her search discouraged her.

The girl was taken from a lodging house at No. 48 Worcester street, South End, to the hospital during the night, after another roomer found her unconscious on her bed. When the reporter called at her bedside she told a pitiful story of disillusionment, defeat and final despair.

PARENTS ARE DEAD.

"My father and mother are dead," she said. "I had been out of work for months. I used to work in a Tremont street restaurant, but it went out of business and I couldn't seem to find another job. At last it was too much for me. I talked the matter over with a pastor and he told me to 'cheer up.'

"'Cheer up'—I wanted to go to a place where I could be cheerful for eternity. Death was the only thing left. But I knew that a pack of veronal tablets cost 59 cents and I only had about half of that. So I borrowed a quarter from an acquaintance and went to the drug store.

"They must have sold me something else, though, for it only cost me 39 cents. I put the tablets in my pocket and went into the restroom of a downtown store. There I met another girl, whom I have never seen before.

"She told me she was out of work and despondent and said: 'If this keeps up I'm going to kill myself.' I told her I didn't blame her and went on into the washroom and took ten of the tablets. Then I went home.

WANTS TO DIE.

"When I felt myself getting sleepy I day down on the bed. The next thing I knew I was in the hospital. But I want to die. Why won't they let me? Why should I want to live?"

The girl was well liked and respected at the Worcester street rooming house where she had lived, her closest friend there, Mrs. Ella McSweeney, was the one who found her after she had taken the poison and who called the physicians that sent her to the hospital.

Miss Knowles, acquaintances said, had lived quietly and had never received any men callers. She formerly lived in Roxbury, it is said.

CHELSEA MAN IS OVERCOME BY STILL FUMES

Overcome by fumes from a still the police charged he was operating in his home, William Fridlin of Walnut street, Chelsea, fell to the floor and was so badly scalded by hot liquor that overflowed from the still that his name was placed on the danger list at the Chelsea Memorial Hospital.

According to the police, Fridlin requested they remove the still and all the fixtures to the police station. This was done as soon as the scalded man was taken to the hospital.

The police say Fridlin stated he was at work today, making liquor, and that he noticed the fumes were heavy as they rose from the boiling mash. Suddenly he lost consciousness and pitched to the floor by the side of the still.

As he fell, he struck the still and the boiling contents overflowed on his prostrate form. His body was horribly scalded. His wife heard the noise and, when she saw what had happened, at once called in the police.

The still, the police said, was of forty gallons capacity. In addition to the still, a large quantity of mash and a gallon of moonshine were seized.

GIRL'S SLAYER REMOVED TO ASYLUM

George V. Dunham of Malden Taken From Prison to Hospital at Bridgewater

George V. Dunham of Malden, sentenced last week to a term of eighteen to twenty years in the Charlestown State prison for the fatal shooting of his sweetheart, Althea Knight, last Fall in her father's grocery store, was removed today to the State Asylum for the Criminal Insane at Bridgewater.

This action was taken after physicians had made an extended examination of him. Dunham had been acting in a peculiar manner, officials said, ever since his admittance to the prison, and finally became violent and uncontrolable.

Prison doctors say that they believe his insanity due to a bullet, fired by himself into his own head after the shooting of his sweetheart. They said they believed his insanity dates from the explosion of that bullet, and was not in existence at the time of the murder.

Dunham was originally indicted for first degree murder, but a plea of guilty to manslaughter was accepted.

LT. BURKE OF NEWTON APPOINTED CAPTAIN

Lieutenant Bernard F. Burke, oldest member of the Newton police force, was today appointed captain, an office revived by the new city government after a lapse of six years, when former Captain John Ryan retired. Burke, who lives at No. 44 Wildwood avenue, was appointed a patrolman on the Newton force in 1888. During the past Summer, while Chief Frederic Mitchell was ill, Burke acted as chief of the force. Mitchell has returned and goes out of office March 1.

$700,000 PAID TO SWINDLERS BY WOMEN

Wealthy New York Society Matrons Victims of Mystic Domino Club

New York, Feb. 25.—Fresh details of the workings of the mysterious "Domino Club," the secret organization through which wealthy society women were relieved of large sums of money, reveal that the losses of these women reach the astonishing total of $700,000.

Eleven women have been summoned to tell the Grand Jury of New York County Monday all they know about the "Domino Club," how their money was taken and how Alfred E. Lindsay, the broker and alleged head of the organization, worked.

The women were led to believe that men like J. P. Morgan, Percy A. Rockefeller, James A. Stillman, George F. Baker, Thomas W. Lamont, met at the "club," each wearing a mask to keep his identity secret, and discussed big financial deals.

Lindsay, it is charged, told the fair social leaders that he was a member of the club and was able to "tip" them to impending transactions which the rest of the world knew nothing about, and which would enable them to reap large profits by investing with him.

He has departed for other scenes, leaving a gaping rent in the finances of the women.

The eleven women and one man who have been subpoenaed to appear before the Grand Jury Monday and the amounts they allege Lindsay got from them are:

Mrs. Lillian M. Duke, divorced wife of James B. Duke, billionaire tobacco manufacturer, $375,000 in cash and $50,000 in jewelry.

Miss Carlotta Nilsson, retired actress, living at the Hotel Bockingham, $20,000.

Mrs. W. H. Arnold, 153 West Seventy-four street, $30,000.

Miss Margaret Bogart, No. 15 Central Park West, $18,000.

Mrs. Dorothy Atwood, No. 247 West Seventy-second street, $67,000.

Mrs. Helen Burnett, No. 43 West Forty-eighth street, $31,000.

Mrs. Adelaide V. Lamont, Riverdale, N. Y., seventy-five years old and almost blind, $25,000.

Mrs. Joseph D. I. Cornell, Bayside, L. I., $20,000.

Miss Helen Smith, Stamford, Ct., amount not known.

Miss Catherine Adams, No. 14 East Sixtieth street, $40,000.

Major Redondo Sutton, No. 41 East Forty-second street, formerly president of the Pacific Mining & Chemical Company, $5,000.

Major Sutton said Lindsay returned this money to him when he threatened to complain to the district attorney.

After the stories of the above persons are submitted to the Grand Jury Assistant District Attorney Murphy will ask for the indictment of Lindsay charging grand larceny and embezzlement.

VLADMIR JABOTINSKY TO SPEAK HERE TOMORROW

GIRL IN TRAIN TRAGEDY LIVED IN TERROR

Miss Russell Tells of 6 Months' Fear of Murder by Jeffers

How she has lived for the past six months in constant fear of being murdered by her insane suitor after his unreasoning jealousy during a courtship of two years had caused her to reject him was told today by Miss Grace Russell in Framingham Hospital where she is recovering from the four bullet wounds and the beating he inflicted upon her.

Kingston Jeffers, the insane suitor, attacked her in a train at Mills Thursday evening after he had shot and killed her father. Jeffers died later from a bullet he fired at himself.

"A neighbor sitting behind us in the passenger coach had just invited father and me to ride home in an automobile when I first noticed Kingston in the coach," said Miss Russell. "Kingston had evidently planned on shooting me on arriving at West Medway, but on overhearing the invitation which was extended to use at Cliquot Station, must have decided that he would be fooled of his plans at West Medway. For he immediately began to shoot.

"I loved Kingston Jeffers when he was first courting me," the girl continued. "I was very happy but before many months his wild jealousy began to dominate his every action. I was nineteen, he was twenty-seven. I was fond of dancing. He was not. Soon he began to violently object to any association with other men and this attitude finally led to my breaking with him.

"Then he started to threaten my life and to follow me. His threats were made by telephone and by letter, and I have since never dared to go out without being escorted by my father or brother."

Calls Girl Victim of "Gross Love of Physical Man"

Is Miss Claire Beauclair, Brockton's "mystery girl," who changes mentally without warning from a bright eighteen-year-old girl to a mere babbling child of six, going to be restored to a normal mental state?

Mrs. Winnifred Webster Harlow, Boston psycho-analyst, says she is. Mrs. Harlow is now treating the girl and declares that it will be but a comparatively short time before the girl will be her normal self again and will be able to take up her life where she left off when she first started the medical world by her peculiar trances.

Miss Beauclair was brought to Boston by Mrs. Harlow and was taken to a quiet room where she is visited only by her mother and the psycho-analyst. Until she is again normal she will be allowed no visitors.

EXPERTS BAFFLED.

For weeks the case of Miss Beauclair has been puzzling mental experts who have visited the girl at her Brockton home. None of the experts could solve the strange puzzle, and all efforts on the part of physicians appeared to have no effect on the girl.

One minute the girl would be a cheerful, carefree girl of eighteen years; the next minute she would have changed completely and babble a lot of childish prattle and attempt to hide from a pair of "piercing black eyes" that she declared haunted her.

She would go into one of these trances and gradually drop off into a state of coma. Then without warning she would recover and be a normal young woman again.

SEARCH FOR GREEK.

Search was made for a dark-eyed Greek who, it was said, had exerted his influence upon her. It was hoped that if he had a hypnotic hold on the girl it could be stopped. But all attempts to remove this mental condition were in vain.

Then came Mrs. Harlow. She talked with the girl and declared that she could remove it. She said that the trouble was caused by the gross love of a physical man. She pointed out that the girl is what is called a "mental woman," and explained that the physical love of the man made a profound and revolting impression on the girl.

"He fixed his passionate eyes on her," said Mrs. Harlow, "and she shivered. She ran away and he followed. Finally he used force and struck her. Then the girl became a mental wreck.

REPELLED ADVANCES.

"She is of fine texture; he is coarse. They are diametrically opposed to each other. This very fact impelled his advances and while she unconsciously attracted him she repelled his advances.

"What she needs is understanding. Educational methods must be used to cure her. One thing she must not have—that is sympathy. Strict discipline must take the place of sympathy and baby treatment. That is what she is getting with me.

"Her thoughts must be changed. She must be made to think of things other than the eyes of the man who finally believe is responsible for her mental condition. She must not talk about her condition or the trance. She must be made to forget them.

"The girl's mind must be occupied all of the time. The powers of resistance must be strengthened. In other words, the girl's mind has to be completely built up."

HAS FURROWS IN BRAIN.

"Continual thinking of her strange trances and of the man with the piercing black eyes has worn deep furrows in her brain. I shall make newer, deeper ruts of right thinking to displace those that are now making a mere child of the girl."

Where the girl is stopping in Boston Mrs. Harlow will not disclose. One of the things that is necessary to bring about a cure, she declares, is that the girl be left alone. There must be no talk of her condition. Visitors will undo all that is being done and only the mother will be permitted to see the girl until she is ready to go back home.

CIVILIANS TO BE USED AS MAIL GUARDS

Postoffice Department Will Replace Marines With Special Picked Crew

Washington, Feb. 25.—Replacement of marine mails guards by a specially recruited force of men from the department is now being carried out by the Postoffice Department, it was stated today.

Officials said it was expected that within a short time all marines now engaged in guarding the mails would be withdrawn. The civilian guards are being carefully selected and will form a permanent service, it was asserted.

Marines were detailed to guard the mails and postoffices in all parts of the country last November following a series of mail robberies and information of others planned on a large scale, but it was announced at that time they would be withdrawn in favor of civilian guards as soon as such an organization could be perfected.

Since the marines have been on duty robberies have decreased, and Postoffice Department officials have been highly pleased with the result.

CHICAGO SHAKEN BY DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

30 Tons of Explosive Damage Property in City and Dozens of Suburbs

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Chicago and dozens of its suburbs today found out just what caused the explosion which literally shook them to their foundations and caused a frenzy of excitement last night. Thirty tons of dynamite let go in a stone quarry southwest of the city shortly before 8 o'clock and hundreds of thousands of alarmed residents went to bed not knowing just what had happened to shake them up, damage property and give rise to rumors and reports of concerted bombing squads, an earthquake, a falling meteor and disaster to some of the major manufacturing plants.

For an hour after the blast Chicago and its suburbs were in a furore.

In spite of the large area affected by the explosion, only one man was seriously injured, although scores were cut by glass and shaken and bruised up in the homes living miles from the scene. Albert Kendle, the injured man, was operating a crane some distance from the explosion and sustained a broken arm.

Patrolman Michael Forgan of Argo, Ill., was probably fatally wounded today when shot through the head while standing guard in front of Argo Summit State Bank, the windows of which had been shattered by the explosion.

The shooting was done by several men who drove up to the bank in an automobile and fled when Forgan fell. Argo police believe they intended to rob the bank, but became frightened.

BIG DECREASE OF FOOD HELD IN STORAGE

Drop of 39 Per Cent. From a Year Ago in Amounts in Warehouses

Dr. Hernan C. Lythgoe, director of the food and drug division of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, announced today that there was on February 1 in cold storage in Massachusetts as per the reports filed with the department by the warehouses, 29,451,423 pounds of food, compared with 47,981,509 pounds a year ago, or a decrease of 39 per cent., due to lower holdings of butter, beef, lamb and pork.

The holdings this year are lower in the case of beef by 23 per cent., of pork by 36 per cent., of lamb by 94 per cent., of butter by 22 per cent. and are high in the case of eggs by 16 per cent. and of poultry by 22 per cent.

There was removed from cold storage during January 3,512,753 pounds of butter, 2,360,290 dozens of eggs, 4,829,525 pounds of meat and 841,794 pounds of poultry.

The per capita holdings February 1, 1922, were 1 2-3 eggs, 1¾ pounds of butter, 2 pounds of poultry, 4-6 pound of beef, 2¼ pounds of pork and 1-6 pound of lamb.

SEEKS WIFE AND ORGANIST SHE FLED WITH

Portland Man Declares Musician Made Her Believe He Was Bandit Villa

Portland, Me., Feb. 25.—Dr. Irvin J. Morgan, nationally known as an organist, and Mrs. Anne Marie Tetel, wife of a Mexican marine engineer, are being sought at Darby, Penn., a suburb of Philadelphia, at the request of Sheriff King S. Graham of this city. Warrants have been issued here for the arrest of the couple on statutory grounds.

The warrants were issued after Joseph K. Tetel had told the authorities that Dr. Morgan, who was municipal organist here, had made Mrs. Tetel believe that her husband was in reality Pancho Villa, the Mexican outlaw chieftain, whom Tetel resembles physically. Tetel also accused the physician of trying to get rid of him by luring him away on a fake oil prospecting trip into Mexico.

News of the issuance of the warrants created a sensation in the exclusive Western Promenade Section where Dr. Morgan had often been entertained.

Tetel says his family troubles started last August while Dr. Morgan was the municipal organist. The doctor lived in an exclusive part of the city and was regarded as a man of wealth.

SENT HIM TO MEXICO.

Tetel says his wife became acquainted with him when she went to his house to consult him about some music lessons. Mrs. Tetel, according to her husband, at once made a most favorable impression on the organist. The latter, he says, shortly afterward began to pay frequent calls at the Tetel home.

Toward the close of the Summer, Tetel says, the doctor induced him to go to Mexico and prospect for oil in a certain place which the organist mentioned. The doctor intimated that if oil was found it would mean a fortune for all interested. Tetel says he finally agreed to go and departed for the border.

He returned late in the Fall to find that his wife and the doctor disappeared. He says he traced them to Morgan's home outside Philadelphia. He hurried to the scene with a private detective. While he was trying to induce his wife to return home with him Morgan ran from the house. Later, he said, Morgan returned, chatted with a detective and then, of a sudden, the detective swung on him with a loaded pistol levelled in his hand.

ORDERED FROM HOUSE.

"You get out of here and leave these people alone," he says the detective snapped at him. "Get out and don't come back."

Tetel says he believes Morgan "bought" the detective out. He returned home and sent his wife sing down to try and bring his wife home. He succeeded in doing this, but Tetel says that after his wife had spent but a few days in Portland she again returned to Philadelphia and Morgan.

"Dr. Morgan tried to belittle and injure me by poking fun at my resemblance to General Villa," said Tetel. "He once showed a picture of Villa to my son and said: 'Doesn't that look like your father? Isn't it the same man?'"

On another occasion he said Morgan told a friend of the family to walk up to the house living miles from the Villa—throw up your hands."

"He tried to create the impression that I was Villa, and though of courses he didn't succeed in this, he did cause me a lot of trouble and embarrassment."

BOSTON PROMISED TWO DAYS OF FAIR WEATHER

Forecaster Smith of the local weather bureau today promised Boston two days of fair, seasonable weather. Temperatures will range from zero to 25 or 30 above tonight and tomorrow night to 25 or 30 above in the day time. Northern New England is experiencing extremely cold weather. At Northfield, Vt., the mercury dropped to 32 degrees below zero in the night and was 2 below at 6 a. m. today.

BULL GORES RED FLIVVER; MAKES COLLISION CLAIM

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 25.—Fred Kinnison, a farmer, today appealed to the State Superintendent of Insurance for aid in collecting collision insurance on his automobile. Kinnison stated that he gained his automobile, like a bull at a public sale at Ochiltree, Kansas, attacked it and that the insurance company refused to even consider his claim.

GALBRAITH'S WIDOW GIVEN WAR MEDAL

Cincinnati, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Fred Galbraith, widow of Colonel Fred Galbraith, who was national commander of the American Legion when he died, was presented with a distinguished service medal at her residence. The citation said the medal was "presented for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services as regimental commander of the 147th Infantry."

CARIBOU AGAIN BACK IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Fredericton, N. B., Feb. 25.—After an absence of seven years, caribou have begun to return to New Brunswick. The animals disappeared because of a scarcity of their favorite fodders, and went north to the bleak Gaspe peninsula of Quebec. Recently the tracks of a large herd were seen in the forests not far from this city.

LIVES IN SHACK WHILE HEIR TO MILLIONS

Plymouth Weaver Refuses to Follow Garland's Example and Spurn Fortune

Plymouth, Feb. 25.—Suppose you counted as one of the heirs to an estate estimated at anywhere from forty to fifty millions of dollars! Would you live in a little cabin about eight by ten on top of a steep hill, and wear your oldest clothes, work as a salesman for a wall paper and paint concern in Philadelphia, and eat in lunch rooms or a boarding-house and smoke a T-D clay pipe filled with cut plug? Yes, that is just what Rufus Coppock of this town is doing.

He is a descendant of Bartholomew Coppock and one of the heirs at law in legal circles about Philadelphia, and his old home is in Media, Pa., just a little way from the city of Brotherly Love.

99-YEAR LEASE.

A sister wrote him about it a few days ago and told him what is being done by the others, who will make an investigation as to the probable legality of their claim to real estate and money in Philadelphia, New York, Jersey City, Oil City and other places where ancestors leased land to others for a period of ninety-nine years, and the present generation has just found it out.

Coppock came to Plymouth a score of years ago and has followed the trade of a weaver in the mills. For some time he was engaged in the wholesale fish business.

Just at present he is salesman for a Philadelphia wall paper and paint house and until he scars more particulars from Media expects to stick to the job.

LIVES IN SHACK.

His home is near the summit of Cow Hill. A steep path leads up the icy and snowstrewn slope. The building is a little asphalt paper covered structure about eight by ten feet, with one long window and a door.

Mr. Coppock was not at home, but a glance through the window showed his domicile was as snug and comfortable as any yacht cabin, with plenty of room for just one man.

Coppock, himself, was found half a mile away in his wet weather rig and he leaned against a fence as he talked freely about the subject which has thrust him into notice.

"If there is anything in this, you won't Garlandize it, will you?" he was asked.

"Garlandize? Oh, that fellow who sidestepped a million or more and lived in an old house in the Carver woods? I guess not," emphatically. "I won't dodge anything if it is coming my way, and if my hands are not working well, I'll get a basket," he replied.

"But as for the facts—why, I know what my sister wrote to me about it. I think I won't go on there yet awhile, but let the rest of them mull it over and see what there is in it.

HAD TO ECONOMIZE.

"I may get called back there, and if I do I'll have to go and see how things are for myself, but I'll wait until I hear more anyhow. My shack is some place, I had to do it to economize. I pay $4 a month for it and get some of my meals at home and some down at the lunch rooms and some of them in the boarding house. It used to cost me $10 a week, but it doesn't now. My age? Well, I can remember things back just after the end of the Civil War. My father was in one of the Pennsylvania regiments then.

"If that old lease is any good it sure means something, if we can get it. I've heard about the people named in it, but the only one connected in any way is old Grandma Miles, wife of one of the witnesses."

Then Coppock repeated his decision to sit tight for the present and await more news from the scene of action and then—well!

HUGE FUND ACCUMULATES.

The property comprises real estate in New York and Philadelphia, as well as oil and coal lands in Pennsylvania.

Coppock, a descendant of the first settler by that name in Pennsylvania, has been informed by Nathan Winterrowd of Fort Dodge, Iowa, who claims to be a relative, that the value of the estate represents the accretion from ground rents under a 99-year lease executed in 1818 by a Moses Coates.

Members of the family, according to documents said to have been unearthed by Winterrowd, loaned property in New York and Philadelphia for building operations. The rents were said to have accumulated into large trust funds held in New York banks. One of the pieces of property in Philadelphia is said to be occupied now by a large department store.

THREE ON CITY RENT BOARD ARE DROPPED

Mayor James M. Curley in a letter sent to Edmund Billings, chairman of the rent and housing commission, announced that three paid members of the commission staff would be dropped from the pay roll on February 28, when the appropriation made under Mayor Peters' administration runs out.

He also stated that unless the State Legislature passes a special act to continue the State commission now in existence, the local committee, including the chairman, will go out on the day the State act runs out April 30.

Herbert E. Ellis and Henry A. Doherty, two paid advisers now connected with the commission, will be retained and the Mayor will ask for an appropriation of $1,000 so that they may continue their work.

The three paid members who will be dropped are Edward MacHarrie, Miss Katherine M. Murray and Miss Eileen F. Burke.

BOSTON MAN ARRESTED FOR FITCHBURG THEFT

Fitchburg, Feb. 25.—Leroy E. Tucker, forty-two years old, claiming Boston as his home, was arrested as he was released from Cambridge Jail, charged with the larceny of $300 from Harry E. Rogers, real estate dealer, of this city. The alleged theft occurred January 7, 1921.

Tucker, at that time, claimed to be a stock broker in Salem, representing the Stanley Steel & Welding Company, and other Boston concerns.

—Fresh From Paris—

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

WITH all the classic grace of a Roman toga, the bodice—or rather the upper section of this one-piece draped gown of heavy silver cloth—flings an end across its shoulder that becomes a sort of cape, gradually wandering away to a train. All there is of fulness to this exquisite slender creation is draped to one side at the waistline and permitted to fall in folds at the side, and the skirt is fringed in silver. Rose velvet—just the proper pale shade, and just enough of it to enough one—is introduced in the shoulder strap.

A SLEEVELESS gown, from Jesen Patou, having its straight around corsage supported by narrow straps, is of gold brocade. It is equally as slender as the model sketched at the left, but this time there is a definitely low waistline, bloused over an ornamental green and gold girdle, from the front of which falls green fringe almost as long as the gown itself. The brocade, which is open at each side of the skirt, makes a cascading drapery that in the end effects an irregular pointed hemline.

GIFT OF SHARON MAN ACCEPTED BY CHURCH

Order of the Sacred Heart Takes Over Unfinished Building After Plea to Rome

The story of a man's efforts to deed property worth about $150,000 to a Catholic charity was revealed in the registry of deeds at East Dedham when it became known that John O'Brien, retired Sharon real estate dealer and philanthropist, had succeeded after three years in deeding a modern unfinished building to the Order of the Sacred Heart.

The structure is located on the shores of Lake Massapoag, Sharon Heights. It is constructed of brick, tapestry and tile, and is four stories high. Its dormitories and other rooms will accommodate 500.

Three years ago, John O'Brien, a devout Catholic, decided to make a present to the order of the Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul. His wife, Mary A., now dead, was heart and soul in the project. And it is to her memory that the seventy-seven-year-old O'Brien has dedicated the building.

He served as his own architect and builder. Four stories were put up. Then, as he relates it, his funds became exhausted and he notified the Sisters of the project. Some time elapsed and finally came word that they would be unable to accept the building.

Offers to other Catholic orders and institutions followed, with the same result. Months ago Mr. O'Brien decided upon a novel plan. He sent letters and documents relating the complete story of his efforts to the Holy See at Home.

Two months later he received a personal visit from European heads of the Order of the Sacred Heart. The gift was accepted after the foreign visitors had formed a corporation under the statutes of the State of Rhode Island. Then came the formal passing of the papers.

MOTOR NEWS AND NOTES By C. F. Donnocker

1922 AUTO SHOW EXPECTED TO BE BIGGEST

While the Boston Automobile Show has always, in every way, been the largest show in this country, indications this year are that it will be for the greatest show ever seen, especially in point of attendance, and Chester I. Campbell, veteran manager of the show, is making arrangements for the convenient handling of a steady flow of visitors from the time the show opens, Saturday afternoon, March 11, to the time of closing, Saturday night, March 18.

These conclusions are based on the results at the New York and Chicago shows, both of which are early expositions, and both of which showed a record breaking attendance, even running ahead of the 1920 shows, which held the high figures.

Within a few days the various halls of Mechanics Building, where the show is to be held, will be taken over by a small army of workers, under the personal direction of Manager Campbell and his staff of assistants, and soon the various exhibitors will begin taking their places, the accessories and various special displays will come in, and artists will be at work on the decorations.

The Boston show comes right at the start of the touring season, at a time when practically all makers have completed their lines, consequently there will be cars on exhibition never before shown, both in new makes and in new models.

WEYMOUTH FAMILY DRIVEN OUT BY FLAMES

Two alarms were sounded for a fire which caused damage estimated at more than $10,000 and forced the occupants of a two and a half-story dwelling at No. 35 Front street, Weymouth, to flee for safety early today.

The blaze was discovered by William E. Beach when he was awakened by the crackling of the flames on the first floor. He awakened his wife and they rushed with their two children to the street and sounded the alarm. The fire is thought to have started from an overheated furnace.

VERTIGO VICTIM ROBBED OF $78,000 AND DIAMOND

New York, Feb. 25.—An attack of vertigo Thursday experienced by a man in the financial district resulted in the loss of a wallet containing $78,000 and a valuable diamond stickpin.

The man had just left a banking office and was crossing a street when he suffered the attack. In falling his coat opened and revealed a valuable diamond stickpin and a wallet. Volunteers carried the man from the street, and when he had regained his faculties he discovered his loss.

ASK MR. FIX IT

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I would like your advice on a question of batteries. Would a three-cell battery drive a car that used to be driven with a six-cell battery? No. 2. I have a 1919 Ford car and it is all right on low speed, but when I change to high it starts to jump.

H. M.

Pawtucket, R. I.

It's a shame that you referred to dry cells, and while you could drive a car for a very short distance with three cells, it would be necessary for any length of time to have six cells. (2) Your trouble is that it must have at least 6 volts. (3) If you have been using three dry cells in your car your trouble when in high gear probably comes from too small a current, otherwise it might be due to a worn roller or points on your commutator which makes it skip at high speed.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I have a 1918 Mets touring car and the chain rips on the sprocket. I have taken up all the slack that I can and it will slip. Can you tell me how to remedy this?

E. M. H.

Everett, Mass.

Your trouble comes from worn sprocket and chain or both, and the only remedy would be to put on both new sprocket and new chain. Unless you put on both you will not accomplish your purpose.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—Does the Autopher engine Mets-6-30 take a long ¼ inch plug or a regular one? On page 121 of The Motor for January 22 it says a long one, and on page 209, same issue, it says ¼ regular plug. On a plug maker's list it gives ¾ extension. The Mets-4 takes a ¾ inch long. Why the use of different lengths? Is it not better for the work to locate the centre of the gas mixture than the top? Notice in your column recently that you put molasses grease in the Motor Just Full. In place of similar grease is used, for the reason it saves burning new gaskets, flow about valve chamber on the block side and grease on the head side?

Dunn Mine, U. S. N.

The Mets-6-30 takes a ¼ inch regular plug. The Fordwinder uses a ½ inch long. The difference in these plugs is because you have two different types of motors. You always find certain plug makers which recommend their different plugs for various styles of motors, and sometimes they produce very good results. The ideal way is to centre the mixture would be to ignite it all at the same time, but this is impossible, owing to the limitations in the structure of the various styles of plugs on the market. Light grease can be used on gaskets, especially new ones. But the case I recommended shellac was for one cylinder on which the driver would not keep the gasket from blowing out. Of course it ruins the gasket every time it is removed unless enough can is taken.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—Could you inform me where I could get books that will illustrate and teach how to repair and wire all kinds of motors?

Holyoke, Mass.

The only information that we can give is to go to some good book store and see what they can give you on the subject. For what reasons we can not recommend any book through this column and as a matter of fact probably no one book will give you all you want to know.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I have in my possession a Secret Out-board motor, for which I desire to secure some spare parts, but have been unable to find out the address of maker or such other place where I might be able to secure parts. Perhaps you can give me this information. Although I have had the motor for 2 years I am still in search of one. Can you give me such information?

F. E. Sc.

From the best authority we can get, this motor has not been on the market for several years and we could not find where you can get any parts for it. I do not know of any one who has a complete set of parts, but I am in stock all small accessories, although these are small that do have a universal engine parts. I am very sorry I cannot help you in this matter. It might be possible to get other parts and have them fitted, but this might entail more expense than you care to put on an old motor.

EARLY DISPLAY OF NASH CARS NEXT WEEK

C. P. Rockwell, Inc., New England distributors for Nash cars, announce a Spring opening and pre-show display of all Nash models, both Fours and Sixes, all next week.

"This pre-show idea," says Mr. Rockwell, "is the result of the tremendous interest shown in the Nash line on Washington's Birthday. Despite the inclement weather there was record-breaking attendance at our salesrooms the entire day.

"Coming so near the date of the annual Boston Automobile Show, it clearly indicates a desire on the part of many to inspect and study the car which has attracted them more at their own leisure and convenience.

"Our pre-show display will give all just the fullest opportunity to become intimate with the latest Nash models, which have attracted such attention and received such praise at both the recent New York and Chicago shows."

SAYS HE'LL RUN DOWN GHOST AT ANTIGONISH

Dr. Prince Ready for Pursuit Even "If the Devil Is at Bottom of It"

New York, Feb. 25 (By Associated Press).—Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, director of the American Institute for Scientific Research, today notified the Halifax Herald he was ready to go to Canada and run down the famous ghost of Antigonish, "even if the devil himself were at the bottom of it."

He stipulated, however, that somebody in Canada would have to prove his earnestness by providing an expense account. He would not ask anything for his services, he said.

Dr. Prince has the solution of several ghost mysteries to his credit, but he has never met a ghost.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 25.—A party of inquisitive scientists now threatens to break in upon the quiet of the Antigonish ghost whose fame grows with each new thrill it causes.

Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, director of the American Institute for Scientific Research, New York, has declared his intention of calling at the haunted house if he can arrange to obtain a leave of absence.

In the event the eminent American makes the trip, he will be accompanied by a member of the Montreal Spiritualists' Society and a professor of science from one of the maritime province universities, it was announced today.

The haunted house is the home of Alexander MacDonald, near Caledonia Mills, in a scantily inhabited valley, deep in the mountains and woods.

MacDonald, his wife and their adopted daughter fled the place in terror in the dead of Winter, with weird tales of a ghost among the cattle and a series of mysterious fires.

The tale obtained wide credence, and the provincial police sent a detective to the place. He was accompanied by a newspaperman, the two taking up their residence in the MacDonald house for three nights, fleeing it, finally, with an eerie tale of being slapped in the night by hands that didn't seem to be attached to anything in particular. Now comes the call for scientific investigation.

BOSTON MAN FREED ON LARCENY CHARGE

Worcester, Feb. 25.—Julius Mashowitz, forty-two years old, No. 24 Phillips street, Boston, was discharged in District Court on a charge of larceny of $5,000 of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kufta of No. 35 Water street. Mashowitz escaped from Lieutenant Romanos Thayer and Mrs. Kufta's husband in Boston by running over the roof and down through the hallways of a Boston house. He denied he had fleeced the couple out of the money under the promise of getting the woman free from a charge of keeping liquor illegally.

BLAZE NEAR GASOLINE QUENCHED BY HAND

The prompt and effective work of Lieutenant Thomas G. Whiting of the Lexington fire department and his faithful hand water extinguisher saved the gasoline filling station of the Jenney Manufacturing Company, at the corner of Waltham street and the State road, in Lexington, from being badly burned. Some oily cloths in front of the filling station became ignited and blazed up fiercely, licking the sides of the building. Whiting soon had the fire under control. The loss will amount to less than $100.

RAID STUDENTS' ROOMS IN SEARCH FOR LIQUOR

Chicago, Feb. 25.—The rooms and dormitories of hundreds of students of Northwestern University were raided for liquor by the Evanston police. President Walter Dill Scott, it is said, asked for the raid after many reports of drinking by students had been called to his attention. A fine pint of whiskey found in the room of a student, who said he got it six months ago for earache, was the sum total of results. The bottle was confiscated, but the student was not detained.

FATHER ACCIDENTALLY SHOOTS SON IN ARM

Worcester, Feb. 25.—Arthur Ross, thirteen years old, of No. 345 Main street, was accidentally shot by his father in the Ross home on a new in City Hospital suffering from a bullet wound in his left arm. The father reported he was cleaning his revolver when it struck the bureau and was discharged. When the father was running down stairs to call a physician he tripped and fell, dislocating his right shoulder.

MOTHER DYING, BREWER'S DAUGHTER HANGS SELF

New York, Feb. 25.—With her mother at the point of death, Miss Henrietta Frank, thirty-five years old, daughter of the late William H. Frank, wealthy brewer, committed suicide by hanging herself in the family home in the Montana apartments, No. 1 Schermerhorn street, and the critical condition of her mother are believed to have furnished the motive.

FAMILY PROUD OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY

MRS. THOMAS C. O'BRIEN AND CHILDREN

MRS. O'BRIEN HAS NO TIME FOR CLUBS

New District Attorney's Wife Is Too Busy With Home Duties

Mrs. Thomas C. O'Brien, wife of the newly appointed district attorney of Suffolk county, has three hobbies—her home, her husband and her children.

Every minute of her time is devoted to one of the three, and to a Boston American reporter she admitted that at times she does not have minutes enough to go round. As for clubs and politics and other diversions that take her away from the home, well, she has no use for them. But while she has no time for clubs and social pastimes, Mrs. O'Brien is willing and glad to take all the time in the world to tell how proud she is of her husband.

"I think I have the finest husband in the world," said Mrs. O'Brien, "and I am just as proud of him as it is possible for a woman to be. I think he is just wonderful. I am not ashamed to tell of my pride, for I think that I have a right to be proud of a man who has been given the position he has when he is only thirty-four years old.

"Of course I think that he can do anything, so I have no doubt but that he will be just as successful in his new position of district attorney as he has been in all his other work."

NO TIME FOR CLUBS.

Mrs. O'Brien is a charming and attractive woman. She is the type of woman who makes you feel perfectly at home as soon as you step over the threshold of her home. She is of medium height and sturdy build. She has a face that radiates kindness and two of the most smiling eyes that one could wish to see. As she told of her pride in her husband these eyes fairly sparkled and joy was written all over her face.

"What about clubs, politics and women's affairs in general?" was mentioned the reporter.

"I have no time for those things," replied Mrs. O'Brien. "I belong to one club—the Catholic League of Women—but I have no time to waste. My time is taken up entirely by my home, my four children and my husband. I do not have enough time to devote to them much less to give to clubs.

"You know, I think that a woman's greatest work is in making a home attractive, raising her family as it should be raised and helping her husband in every way possible. My husband and I are regular chums. He tells me all his troubles and I tell him mine. We share joy and sorrow, and as a result have real happiness.

"I do not think that a woman should leave her children to the care of servants, as I do it myself. They know that my children are getting the care they should. Incidentally, it is considerable of a job to care for four youngsters like mine.

"How about hobbies, have you any?" asked the reporter.

"Oh, yes, three of them," replied Mrs. O'Brien, "My husband, my home and my children. I guess they are all the hobbies I can take care of."

PROUD OF DADDY.

Mrs. O'Brien did admit that she liked dancing—when she had time—and liked to see a good football game.

As for the four O'Brien children, they all love "daddy" just as much as their mother. Mary, seven; Catherine, six, and Thomas, Jr., were all so excited over the appointment of their father to a new office that they could not sleep the first night. Julia, aged two, did not know what it was all about, but joined in the celebration with a bit of infant chatter.

CHURCH NOTES

Professor Albert Bushnell Hart will deliver his lecture on "The American Minister" in Trinity Church, Newton Centre, next Sunday evening at 7:15. This is the first of a series Prof. Hart is to deliver in Sanders Theatre, Cambridge, on the history of the Ministry. His topic next Sunday is the intriguing subject "Is Democracy Failing?" Professor Hart is Cambridge's historian par excellence and his lectures at the Old South Church last Wednesday evening, his visit being his annual visitation, will repeat by request for an hitherto unannounced date, $8.75 twice delayed last Sunday.

The spring of lectures are being given Sunday evenings at Wellesley by the Agassiz Association Society, and on Feb. 26 Dr. Edward Cummings, the director of this society, Dr. George Swallowed, is not only a physician of thirty-five years' practical experience, but has been given to clinical work in the large hospitals of New York, but is a Methodist clergy, Orthodox, a teacher of Parisology and Psychology and his practical applied and experimental work in all mental, physical and spiritual diseases. Sunday services are conducted, rain or shine, Sundays at 4 p. m. Wednesdays at 7:45 p. m.

Impending Visit of Stork Blamed for Brooklyn Murder

New York, Feb. 25.—Declaring his wife was soon to become a mother and that he was in desperate need of money, W. J. Evans, a laborer, confessed today to the murder of Paul J. Gilman, Brooklyn druggist, who was found shot to death in his store Thursday night.

Evans told the police he and three others, including his brother, planned to rob the druggist. Evans said he shot Gilman when he refused to throw up his hands.

The attempt at robbery failed when one of the four jammed the cash register in trying to open it. The fact that no money had been taken from the cash register had given the murder an air of mystery. Frank Evans, brother of the confessed slayer, also was taken into custody.

THIRTY DRIVEN TO STREET BY SMOKE

Tenants of Belvidere Street Apartment House Are Forced to Flee

Thirty persons were driven to the street by dense smoke during a fire in the four-story brick apartment house No. 27 Belvidere street today.

The fire started in the apartment of Mrs. Mary Kedian on the second floor. It was probably caused by the careless use of matches. The flames swept rapidly through this flat and smoke filled the entire building.

The occupants of the building all succeeded in reaching the street safely. A number fled by fire escapes which led to the roofs of adjoining buildings.

The firemen were called by a still alarm. The blaze was confined to the apartment where it started. The building is owned by Norma Snow. The loss was estimated at about $300.

LYNN PLANT PUTS IN 11 PER CENT. WAGE CUT

The John R. Donovan Shoe Company in Lynn, a member of the Shoe Manufacturers Association, has put into effect an 11 per cent. wage cut at its plant employing 250 persons, it was announced today. The association's agreement with the shoe workers' unions expires on April 30.

COMEDY TO BENEFIT RETREAT HOUSE FUND

WALKER TO RUN IF LODGE IS UNOPPOSED

"I will support ex-Governor John L. Bates or any other suitable candidate who has the courage to oppose Mr. Lodge, but if no one else will run, then, at the proper time, I shall announce my candidacy. I do not intend to let this matter go by default."

This is the position of Joseph Walker in the United States Senatorial campaign in Massachusetts made public in a letter sent by Walker to Congressman Allen T. Treadway.

HUSBAND TAKEN TO JAIL FROM WIFE'S GRAVE

Ayer Man Accused of Causing Death by Illegal Treatment, Woman Also Held

Ayer, Feb. 25.—As the body of Mrs. Howard A. Gooley, thirty-one years old, was being lowered into a grave in Woodlawn Cemetery, Clinton, the police startled a large group of mourners by arresting the woman's husband.

After Gooley had been brought to the lockup here, the Ayer police arrested Mrs. Georgiana Hawley of this town.

Gooley was charged with causing his wife's death by illegal treatment and Mrs. Hawley was charged with aiding and abetting. Mr. and Mrs. Gooley lived at No. 2 Church street, Ayer, with Mrs. Hawley.

WAR ROMANCE SEQUEL.

The death of Mrs. Gooley, who was the mother of a nineteen-months-old boy, and the arrest of her husband and Mrs. Hawley, came as a tragic sequel to a war romance at Camp Devens.

Mrs. Gooley was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Buchheim, of No. 86 East street, Clinton. While Gooley, whose home was at Rouse's Point, New York, was stationed with his regiment at Camp Devens, he fell in love with the Clinton girl. At the close of the World War they were married and made their home in Ayer. Mrs. Gooley died last Tuesday. Medical Examiner Magrath of Boston and other physicians were called upon to perform an autopsy.

WARRANT AFTER AUTOPSY.

The police said that the warrant was issued following the receipt of the physician's report.

Funeral services for Mrs. Gooley were held at the home of her parents here. The Rev. Robert H. Carmichael, rector of the Clinton Episcopal Church, officiated. More than fifty mourners in ten motor cars followed the hearse to the grave.

The body of the young wife had just been lowered and the mourners were turning away when Police Officer James P. Ford stepped up to the husband, who stood with bowed head, and placed him under arrest.

FAIL TO GET BAIL.

He was taken by automobile to the Clinton Police Station. There he was turned over to Chief of Police Patrick Beatty of Ayer, who took Gooley to this town.

Gooley and Mrs. Hawley, unable to secure $2,000 bail each, spent the night in the Ayer lockup awaiting arraignment in District Court here today.

RAILROAD BRAKEMAN IS KILLED BY TRAIN

George W. McGrimley, twenty-eight years old, of No. 12 Mosgrove avenue, Roslindale, railroad brakeman, died at the City Hospital as a result of injuries received when he was struck by a train on the tracks at the Boston terminal yards, Kneeland street and Atlantic avenue, where he was working.

He was taken to the City Hospital suffering from a fractured pelvis and multiple injuries and died in a few hours.

PRINCE OF WALES' SUITE FIRED UPON

London, Feb. 25.—A Daily Mail dispatch from Patalia states that members of the Prince of Wales' suite, motoring there from Delhi, were fired upon, but that no one was injured. The police are investigating, the dispatch added.

AIMS CAMPAIGN AT HIGH COST OF BUILDING

Daugherty May Attempt to Uproot "Closed Shop" as U. S. Institution

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 25.—A new business code for union labor and for employing building contractors is the aim of the Department of Justice today in a countrywide campaign to remove the high cost element from construction work.

The government's plan, as announced by Attorney-General Daugherty in making public the terms of the consent decree agreed to by New York building trade unions, may take the form of a daring attempt to uproot the "closed shop" as an American institution.

There will be no effort by the government to dictate either the hours or conditions of labor, but the Attorney-General today held forth the definite threat that indictments are due to be returned by grand juries against both union leaders and contractors associations' members if they fail to yield to the demand of the Department of Justice to cease practices that are held to be stifling competition in building jobs.

In almost every important business center in the United States negotiations are to be begun between Federal district attorneys and representatives of union labor.

WOULD PUNISH NURSE FOR TREATING EMPLOYE

The Fall River police have been requested by the State Board of Registry in Medicine to prosecute a nurse employed in the Massasoit Mills in that city for alleged violation of the medical laws for treating the bruised finger of an employe. The nurse has admitted the technical violation although members of the board state that she was entirely competent to [illegible] the finger's usefulness without calling it to the attention of the mill physician.

ATCHISON TO DOUBLE TRACK LONG STRETCH

Los Angeles, Feb. 25.—A double track railroad between Chicago and California by the end of 1923 is the plan of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, according to W. J. Black, general passenger agent, now here.

COAST OFFICIALS MAY GRILL FIELDS

If His Story of Taylor Murder "Holds Up" He Will Be Taken Back to Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Feb. 25 (By International News Service).—Unless definite proof can be found which will completely set aside the story told in Detroit by Harry N. Fields of the slaying of William D. Taylor, film director, officers probably will go to the Michigan city to interrogate him.

While inclined strongly to doubt his presence here on the night of February 1, circumstantial confirmation of portions of his story probably will necessitate a first-hand questioning of Fields by local officers.

Should his story hold up under this "test," steps will then be taken for his return to Los Angeles, providing some arrangement for this can be made with Michigan authorities.

While attaches of the sheriff's office continued running down clews furnished by Fields and checking on his statements, the district attorney was pursuing another line of investigation.

One detective was said to have been sent to San Francisco on a secret mission.

Whether his line of inquiry had to do with a reported message by telephone from a motion picture actress to Fields in San Francisco, the night Taylor was slain, was not divulged.

It is understood that District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine, while doubting Fields' story, is inclined to give credence to the theory that a drug ring was mixed up in the Taylor murder largely as a result of data turned over to him by Assistant United States Attorney Green.

The Federal official told of Taylor seeking his aid to "run drug pedlers out of the studios" and of his solicitude to save a beautiful woman from the clutches of the drug ring.

While no direct word came from the Altadena home of Mabel Normand today, it was reported that she was slightly better, although her condition is still serious. Extreme weakness is said to have been an aftermath of the influenza with which she was stricken last Monday.

"SHIFTER" INJURED BY 100-FOOT LEAP

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 25.—Roy Colby, nursing bruises and cuts, is nevertheless looking to the fact that he is now a full-fledged shifter. His initiation was to jump down a one hundred foot embankment at midnight. He did it and won the right to wear the symbolic brass clip.

Man Who "Confessed" He Drove Taylor Murder Car

HARRY N. FIELDS

Now in jail at Detroit where he tells of being hired to drive a Chinaman to the home of William D. Taylor on the night of the murder and of hearing the fatal shot as he waited outside.

TWO ARRESTED AFTER FIRING ON BRIDGE

Crescenzio Leone and Sabinio Di Pietro, both twenty-eight years old, and claiming to reside on Seneca street, South End, were locked up at the Athens street station shortly after midnight as suspicious persons in connection with the mysterious firing of two shots on the Broadway Extension bridge, South Boston. Each man, according to the police, had a gun in his possession from which one bullet was discharged. The men claim that they each fired a shot to test their weapons, it is alleged.

ALLEGED HORSE RACE PARLOR RAIDED; 5 HELD

A squad of officers of the City Hall avenue station raided a room in the building at No. 43 Tremont street, seized forty slips used for registering bets on horse races and arrested Harry Silverstein, Thomas Fay, Edward McNamara, Hyman Myers and Henry Josephs, charged with being present where gaming implements were found.

The DIRECT treatment for all cold troubles

ABSORBED, like a liniment, and, at the same time,
INHALED as a vapor, Vicks reaches Immediately the congested air passages.

VICKS STANDING OFFER

Vicks doesn't relieve every case. No remedy can possibly do that. But it is successful in so many cases that we have had for years this standing offer: Buy either the 35c, 75c or $1.50 size from your druggist. If you are not delighted with the results, mail us the top of the carton and we will cheerfully refund the purchase price. Or, if you wish to try Vicks before you buy, mail the coupon below for a free sample.

Prevent Spasmodic Croup

By the DIRECT Treatment, at Bedtime

MOTHERS who have adopted Vicks for children's cold troubles lose their old dread of Spasmodic Croup. One application at bedtime usually keeps croup away but, if an attack does come unexpectedly, the use of Vicks often brings relief in 15 minutes.

Externally applied and quickly effective, Vicks is a wonderfully satisfactory substitute for the old method of nauseous dosing to induce vomiting.

Vicks penetrating, stimulating, vaporizing action makes it invaluable in the same way for the cold troubles of all the family.

How Vicks Should be Used for the Children

Spasmodic Croup—At the first sound of harsh breathing apply Vicks over throat and chest, rubbing well in—then apply more, and cover with a hot flannel cloth. Arrange bed-clothes in form of a funnel so the vapors will be freely inhaled.

Children's Colds—Apply Vicks over throat and chest. Cover with a flannel cloth. Leave the clothing, and at night, the bed-clothing, loose about the neck, so that the rising vapors can be freely inhaled. Apply a little Vicks up the nose, and, if the throat is sore, have the child swallow a piece the size of a pea.

The Origin of Vicks

Twenty-five years ago, Druggist Lunsford Richardson, of Greensboro, N. C., seeking a better way to treat colds, hit upon a wonderful formula. He combined Camphor, Menthol and certain volatile oils in the form of a salve, so that when applied to throat and chest, it not only penetrated and stimulated like a liniment, but the ingredients were released as vapors by the body heat and inhaled directly into the affected air passages. This remedy, Vicks VapoRub, won instant local favor and its fame has spread, county by county, state by state, until now Vicks is a family standby from coast to coast and over 17 million jars are used yearly.

From the Ends of the Earth

Vicks contains valuable ingredients brought from distant countries—Camphor from Formosa, land of head-hunting savages; Menthol from picturesque Japan; Oil of Eucalyptus from far Australia; Oil of Juniper Tar from Bedouin haunts of Northern Africa; Oil of Thyme from smiling Southern France; Oil of Turpentine from Dixie; and penetrating healing oils from other foreign climes.

Good for a Host of Daily Ills

Vicks is good for congestion or inflammation, whether found in lining membrane or on the surface of the skin. Thus it is useful for dozens of daily hurts and ills of all the family.

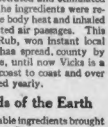
For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Tonsilitis, Bronchitis, Coughs—Vicks should be applied over the throat and chest—if necessary, first using hot, wet cloths to open the pores of the skin—then rubbed in well until the skin is red; spread on thickly and covered with one or two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. If the cough is annoying, a small piece the size of a pea can be swallowed every few hours.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever—Vicks should be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little can be applied up the nostrils and snuffed up the head.

Used as a Liniment, Poultice or Plaster—On account of its penetrative and rubefacient effect on the skin, Vicks has been found excellent for many minor ailments, such as Bites, Boils, Burns, Bruises, Frost Bites, Itchings, Muscular Soreness, Poison Ivy, Sunburn, Headache and Sore Calloused Feet.

VICKS VAPORUB

Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly



The Vick Spoon Test

TRIAL TIN FREE

"THE CIRCLE" AT SELWYN OPENS MONDAY

Nobody is going to begrudge the Selwyns the prosperity which awaits them with W. Somerset Maugham's comedy, "The Circle," at the Selwyn Theatre. As the result of a shrewd and thorough advance campaign, local playgoers are interested in this opening to an unusual degree.

Perhaps the biggest incident will be the assemblage to greet back Mrs. Leslie Carter to the Boston stage. In New York, on the return of Mrs. Carter, the audience threw flowers on the stage at her entrance. She was forced to acknowledge a noteworthy reception with a speech. Her entrance Monday night will certainly prove that Boston hasn't forgotten her. Mayor James M. Curley will be in a box to lend municipal touch to the distinguished audience.

But there'll be John Drew to share co-star honors with Mrs. Carter. Added to this is the fact that Mr. Maugham has written a comedy in which Mr. Drew's and Mrs. Carter's parts are seemingly made to order for them.

The advance sale for "The Circle" surpasses anything the Selwyn Theatre ever boasted of. It was splendid theatrical strategy.

Atmosphere has worked the miracle. Though undefinable itself, the name of its creator can be given. He is Winthrop Ames, who staged "The Green Goddess," and whose genius imparted to it that extraordinary quality which has established it as the conspicuous success of several seasons.

Winthrop Ames Makes a Little Atmosphere

Atmosphere in a play like electricity in a universe is pretty difficult to define. People go to a theatre in the evening or perchance a matinee, their minds filled with their own affairs, pleasant or unpleasant. In a few minutes the curtain goes up and they are lifted from their comfortable seats, in the Plymouth Theatre for example, and are carried thousands upon thousands of miles away to Central Asia to a lofty peak in the Himalayas and set down in the outer court of a temple of the green goddess where they share the astonishment of the natives at the plight of three tourists descending the cliff from a wrecked airplane.

The theatre patrons are no longer on Eliot street. They are in the centre of the little kingdom of Rukh and the cause of the magical transportation is—atmosphere.

It is all around them. They inhale its Oriental charm until their senses are intoxicated with it. Everything takes on not a semblance of reality but reality itself.

Alfred Lund Seems to Be a Real Actor

I always like to pause and admire an actor when I see one. Usually I don't even have to hesitate. One part doesn't make an actor, nor is a person with an attractive personality who simply changes costumes and not his character with different plays an actor. But Alfred Lunt is one. Yes, he is.

Remember "The Country Cousin?" He played a heavy swell, a stout, offensive individual, until he mellowed toward the end.

Then came Clarence, a very shy, awkward youth, grotesque in his mannerisms, a unique personality.

And now Ames in "The Intimate Stranger," a likable if rather obtuse bachelor of thirty-five or more.

If you could stand this trio in a row they would seem exceedingly ill assorted. And yet all are Lunt.

Jim Says Ragtime Makes Us Musical

Jim McIntyre of "Red Pepper" thinks ragtime is making music lovers of the American people. He thinks it hard.

"Why has every American home got a piano or phonograph or both in it?" asks the blackfaced one. "Ragtime. That's the answer. It's ragtime, not the classics that sell pianos. Once the piano is in the home it develops love of music. The kids take lessons.

"At first all they want is to play the popular songs. But gradually they pick up an appreciation of music and they begin to try other things. Ragtime is the introduction to the classics.

"There are about fifty times as many boys and girls who play the piano in America as in Europe, and ragtime has done that. In time it will make us a nation of real musicians. Some day there will be a great American form of music, as there is a German and a French. It will probably have an element of ragtime in it, but it will be ragtime lifted to the plane of perfect music.

"Not all ragtime popular songs are bad. A few of them are truly melodious. Regards to Galli Curci, who thinks differently."

The Moral of Liliom If Any, Is What?

There's a lot of talk about the theology, the morality and the object of "Liliom" the success of which in Boston is a compliment to the intelligence of our folks in this neck of the woods.

Benjamin Glazer, who translated it from the Hungarian of Franz Molnar's, has some interesting observations on the moral of the piece.

"What is the moral of 'Liliom'? Nothing you can reduce to a creed. Molnar is neither a preacher nor a propagandist for any theory of life. You will look in vain in his plays for moral or dogma. His philosophy—if philosophy you can call it—is always implicit. And nothing is plainer than that his picture of a resurrection in the Beyond is neither devoutly nor satirically intended. Liliom's heaven is of his own imagining. And what is more natural than that it should be an irrational jumble of priests' purgatory, police magistrates, Justice and his own limited conception of good deeds and evil?

If one must tag "Liliom" with a moral, I prefer to read mine in Liliom's dying speech to Julie, where in he says, "Nobody is right—but they all think they are right. A lot they know!"

Old Castle Square Stock Under New Name

The new stock at the Arlington got away to a good start with "The Virginians" and if a consistent policy is pursued there is no reason why the old theatre should not see the return of its halcyon days. The public is hard to accustom to a change of names, and it will be a while yet before it thoroughly understands that the Arlington is the old Castle Square Theatre.

My suggestoin is that the Arlington company stick to old standard dramas with plenty of action and thrills in them. These modern bedroom farces are entirely out of place in a stock theatre where very young folk compose a bulk of the patrons, and the modern sex plays in which a spade is called by its right name and not good pabulum for any but sophisticated audiences. There is a question whether they are good for anything.

The Burlesquers Like the Competition at Waldron's

Members of the burlesque companies at Waldron's Casino and the vaudeville performers like the continuous performance idea, which includes burlesque, vaudeville and motion pictures.

When discussing the continuous performance idea, Bobby Barry, leading comedian of the "Maids of America" burlesque company at the theatre this week, said:

"Why, it's real fun to play for an audience that has been enjoying a continuous performance," Barry said.

"Ordinarily the burlesque players must appear upon the stage before an audience that has been fidgeting in its seats, waiting for the curtain to rise, and we are bothered by the entrance of late comers.

"Under such circumstances a player must combat the 'cold' atmosphere of the house, and he must warm his audience up before they begin to feel appreciative of the efforts of the players.

"Appearing in a continuous performance theatre we find the audience all settled and in good humor from seeing other things before our burlesque begins. Instantly our fun registers, and the burlesque goes along with a zip and dash, performers and audience in a sympathetic frame of mind."

Here's a Queer Job for an Actress

Olga Woods, peppery soubrette of the "Flashlights of 1922" burlesque company at the Gayety Theatre this week is introducing a new fad among women stage performers. The new fad is to make vari-colored bags out of jute string. By fashioning floral designs into the bags the little soubrette makes many novel styles of bags, and furnishes much pastime for herself while dressing and dressing room for cues and riding from one city to another over the burlesque circuit.

"I first became interested in plying a needle during the war when, to make socks, wristers, helmets and sweaters, was a patriotic duty," said Miss Olga Woods.

"After the war I found that the knitting and sewing habit had grown upon me and that I was restless if I did not have some sort of needle work in my hands.

"Soon I saw in Chicago some stunning handbags made of jute. Determined to learn how to make them I bought some jute and some coarse needles and began to work. There is not much trick in making these bags and there is much fascinating pleasure to be had."

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS

As evidence of the decided contrast in the nature of plays presented by the popular Somerville Players, the management announces the revival of "The Broken Wing," by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard, which a short while ago attained a distinct triumph in Boston at the Selwyn Theatre. "The Broken Wing" is a melodrama of stirring quality and easily the best work of this gifted pair of authors, who have contributed several notable successes to the American stage. The locale of the play is laid on the Mexican border and one of the most thrilling scenic effects showing the crashing of an airplane through the walls of a cabin will be presented in the identical manner as when the place was originally produced.

KEITH'S

Florence Walton, Jack Norworth, Florence Nash, Elinore and Williams, and Flanagan and Morrison are among the big names on the bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. From all indications the program will be one of the most remarkable of the year, offering a list of brilliant stars in diversified entertainment.

The Stanleys, with a shadograph act, are scheduled to open the show, with Russell and Devitt in acrobatics, songs and dances in second place, and Miss Leitzel, in an unique aerial act next.

Kate Elinore and Sam Williams will offer their newest version of "Wanted A Cook."

ARLINGTON THEATRE STOCK

Owing to the success of "The Virginian," in which the Arlington Stock Company made such a good beginning at the Arlington Theatre last Wednesday evening, this popular play of the West will be continued at this house throughout the coming week. Charles Bickford, Florence Johns and the other members of the company have immediately come into favor with Boston theatregoers.

SIR 'ARRY ON HIS WAY

Sir Harry Lauder's single week's engagement at the Boston Opera House, which opens with the night performance Monday, March 6, promises to be interesting for several reasons. The fact that the famous singing comedian has not been seen and heard here for two years is one reason why his admirers will undoubtedly flock to the Opera House during his brief engagement; but a matter of even more interest is the fact that, in all probability this will be the last opportunity for several years to hear the Scottish minstrel's inimitable rendition of "I Love a Lassie," "When I Was Twenty-One," "I Think I'll Get Wed in the Summertime" and all the other old favorites that he always revives with such generous prodigality.

As in other years, Lauder is offering several new songs this season, and two of them, "I Love Out in O-H-I-O" and "O'er th' Hill to Ardentby," have found much favor with his American audiences that, it is announced, they will become a part of his permanent repertoire. "Hame o' Mine," another new song which he is singing when the occasion seems fitting, has a heart interest that is described as approaching "Wee Hoose 'Mang th' Heathers," a song that has been popularized by Lauder all over the world.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

Several vaudeville features of unusual merit are listed on the vaudeville bill at Gordon's Olympia Theatre this week, and outstanding among them is an elaborate dancing novelty presented by The Ford Sisters. In this spectacular act the terpsichorean artists are Lottie Ford, Johnny Ford, Edwin Ford and Evelyn Bennett. The noted Cutter family of musicians supply the musical accompaniment.

FRED McISAAC says that

FRED STONE is nearing the end of his remarkable run in "Tip Top." Only three weeks more. Colonial.

GEORGE ARLISS in "The Green Goddess" at the Plymouth, has the biggest hit since "Disraeli." I think it's a better play.

"LILIOM," the fantastic drama from the Hungarian, with Eva La Gallienne and Joseph Schildkraut, is having a successful run at the Wilbur. It's something to see.

BILLIE BURKE in the dainty and imaginative comedy by Booth Tarkington, "Intimate Strangers," begins her third and last week Monday. Hollis.

McINTYRE AND HEATH at the Shubert announce their last fortnight in "Red Pepper."

"THE VIRGINIANS" continues next week at the Arlington. The new stock company has begun well.

"THE CONNECTICUT YANKEE" at Tremont Temple continues its well deserved run. A very unusual and amusing film.

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM," the masterpiece of D. W. Griffith, has only another week to remain at the Tremont. Last chances.

CLARA YOUNG AT PARK THEATRE

Clara Kimball Young and Doris May will share the honors of the first-run photoplay bill presenting two new productions at the Park Theatre next week. Any new appearance of Miss Young is of special interest to motion picture patrons, and this production presents her in the enactment of an unusual sort of dual role comprising opposing characters. One is a cabaret singer and the other is a nun.

The cabaret entertainer becomes suspected of having committed a murder, and in her despair and fear flees to a convent. There she pleads for the good sister's help, and through a strange influence the nun is inspired to change places with the suspect. The consequent events are said to give a dramatic and inspiring turn to the story with an end happily consoling.

Miss May is seen as an aggressive young woman whose instincts for business make for her success in conducting a haberdashery in a small city.

BOWDOIN SQ. THEATRE

The Great Blackstone, one of the greatest magicians on the stage, will be seen at the Bowdoin Square Theatre the entire week beginning Monday, and he will offer illusion after illusion that mystifies the audience. He has a company of eight people who assist in these mystifying stunts. Richard Barthelmess, the screen favorite, will be seen in the picture, "Tol'able David," one of the big productions of the year, and another top offering will be Gloria Swanson in "Under the Lash."

GRAND DUKE' COMING TO TREMONT

The dramatic season at the Tremont Theatre will be renewed Monday evening, March 6, when David Belasco presents Lionel Atwill in "The Grand Duke," a Parisian comedy by Sacha Guitry. This engagement is positively limited to two weeks.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM

The "Girls from the Golden West," a clever burlesque organization, with Frances Farr, Frank Damsel, Jack Lamont and a live chorus, will skip about the stage and offer something genuinely new in the realm of burlesque.

NOTED IRISH PLAYERS IN COMEDY

Charles Dillingham will present the famous Irish Players from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, in Lennox Robinson's much applauded comedy, "The White-Headed Boy," for a two weeks' engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre, beginning Monday, March 6.

GORDON'S STRAND

In his new Paramount picture, "Rent Free," which comes to Gordon's Strand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Wallace Reid, the star, is seen as an artist. Prior to entering the film field Mr. Reid was an artist of ability, his work being confined chiefly to pen and ink drawings and cartooning for newspapers.

CARTER AND DREW AT SELWYN

With manners that reflect precisely the class of society with which its story deals and with dialogue that sparkles with cynical humor, but that never once is marred by an artificial note, the Selwyns' presentation of "The Circle," written by W. Somerset Maugham, opening at the Selwyn Theatre Monday night, spreads before the perverse and discontented Mrs. Champion-Cheney, who is about to take a fatal step, the object lesson of a similar misadventure of thirty years before, which she stubbornly refuses to heed.

From beginning to end, "The Circle" is a serious picture of human nature and its weaknesses but its sting is relieved by the humorous sparkle of its cynical dialogue. And its characters are all acted with perfect understanding. Mrs. Carter reveals a remarkable sense of humor as the faded but still frivolous and foolish victim of a romance grown cold. Mr. Drew, as the grumpy disillusioned companion in her folly, is exceedingly effective. Mr. Lawford, as the suave and philosophical elder Champion-Cheney, gives a placed performance of his sympathetic role in which there are always traces of half hidden humor. John Holliday, who stands at the other end of the domestic triangle further adds to the cast of perfection. Miss Linley, as the perversely stubborn young wife, and Robert Rendel, as her fussy, egotistical young husband, will both be found to be capital.

BOSTON THEATRE

Pearl White in her latest release, "The Broadway Peacock," the romance of a woman's regeneration, will be the feature at the Boston Theatre next week.

LESSON IN DEMOCRACY IN FILM

"Orphans of the Storm" Is a Remarkable Masterpiece of Dramatic Intensity

By GEORGE HOLDEN TINKHAM.

Democracy is liberty and equality.

Liberty and equality was the high inspiration and glorious triumph of the troops of Washington in the American Revolution. The body and soul of the Constitution of the United States, child of the American Revolution, was liberty and equality.

Liberty and equality was the glorious dream of those who conceived and brought to pass the great French Revolution which expelled autocracy and tyranny from France.

Autocracy and tyranny returned to France when liberty and equality was banished by minority rules.

In a democracy, minority domination and control annihilates liberty, destroys equality and is slavery and subjugation.

When the American democracy abandons liberty and equality, it shall perish forever.

Today some of the most vital and profound American legislation is dictated by small, selfish, highly organized and efficient minorities imposing their opinions and will upon docile, subservient and obedient public authority. These are the Robespierres of America.

Shall America go the way of the French Revolution? The law of the minority is disorder and will bring revolution.

Anarchy is the offering of despotism.

Shall anarchy destroy America by the despotism of selfish minorities?

While America is in peril of tyrannical minorities, D. W. Griffith, the most famous motion picture creator, has produced in his "Orphans of the Storm" the lesson from the terrors of the French Revolution which sprang from minority domination and control at that time.

This production is a marvellous coincidence with certain contemporary American conditions. Through the motion picture America may yet be saved, with liberty and equality re-established on firm foundations.

The people of the United States will do well to see this picture and study closely events as shown on the screen.

It is a remarkable masterpiece of dramatic intensity and a powerful lesson for all who see it.

A Young and Beautiful Veteran of the Screen

It may appear odd to speak of Clara Kimball Young as a veteran of any sort of endeavor, so youthful is she both in appearance and reality. But it is safe enough with the motion picture industry, which grew almost overnight from infancy to maturity. Miss Young has been before the picture public in so many distinguished productions that one might well hardened for believing her much older than what she is.

Miss Young comes rightly by her ability to act, for since she was born in Chicago, through early childhood, she has been a developed product of the theatre. That is the only funeral that she should quickly forge to the front, for she has given no sign to retain that eminence for so long a time.

In "The Wordly Madonna," her newest picture which will be given its first showings throughout next week at the Park Theatre, she will have a role which will unwrap her special gift in character portrayal. It is a dual role, embracing two widely opposing characters, one a dancer of rough mannered, and the other a nun of the holy type.

The King Arthur Work Shop a Marvel

One of the most striking scenes in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," the big production now current at the Tremont Temple, which Emmett Flynn made for William Fox, is the workroom in which the hero establishes in a wing of the castle of the King a shop of mechanics. He smocked and bobbed locks, who at his bidding of the modern complement of war, telephone, motorcycles, gas bowser, etc., which this up-to-the-minute Yank introduces into the slow going kingdom of the ancient legendary ruler. The workshop is in an old room with round arches, but the new suits for windows, stone walls and floors. Installed in this ancient setting is the following list of modern twentieth century machinery: Lathe, motor and generator, sensitive drill, morticing machine, drill press, air pump, work benches, patterns for casting, time clock with time record cards and starting bell, fully equipped blacksmith shop with forge, a vise, blue prints, an electrical apparatus for running the machinery. All these things, of which the period of Arthur never dreamed, with the ancient setting and the queer contrast they cut the Mark Twain humor with the same subtlety as does the rest of the picture.

"Unusual Cast In Conceit"

One of the most carefully chosen and best balanced casts of players noted in this season's screen productions will be found in the latest of special features from the Selznick studios, which is titled "Conceit," and which is to be shown at the Orpheum Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. While no one particular player is announced as the star, practically every member of the cast has been featured at some time in the past. The leading feminine role of Mrs. Crombie is portrayed by Hedda Hopper, who will be remembered by her recent sterling appearance opposite William Faversham in "The Man Who Lost Himself." William B. Davidson will be seen as William Crombie, the leading male character, and others to be noted are Maurice Costello, the well known screen star, who marks his return to the silent drama in this production and Betty Hilburn, who starred in "The Girl of the Sea"; Red Eagle, a full-blooded Sioux Indian actor, and Charles Gerard, the well known heavy. Patrick Hartigan and Warren Cook are also cast in prominent roles.

PURCELL IS BILLED AT MAJESTIC

Noted Musical Comedy Star Is Headliner of Strong Vaudeville Program

Charles Purcell will head the brilliant Shubert vaudeville program at the Majestic Theatre the coming week. This well known musical comedy star has recently entered the vaudeville ranks in response to special inducements held out by the Messrs. Shubert and has met with that same tremendous favor with patrons of vaudeville that marked his musical comedy appearances. Mr. Purcell will be recalled as the star of such musical comedy successes as "Maytime," "Chocolate Soldier," "Florabella," "Magic Melody," "Monte Cristo, Jr." etc. In his appearance at the Majestic the coming week he is assisted by Le Roy Smith's Symphonic Orchestra, the world's greatest syncopaters, featuring Hubert Kinney with Martha Shelby.

Another item of much importance the coming week will be Irene Rubini and Teresa Rosa, two experienced artists in the vaudeville field, where they have just resumed a partnership after appearing with other partners for a season. Irene Rubini is a dainty miss, who specializes as an accordionist. Teresa Rosa is a violinist, vocalist and whistler.

Frank Matthews and Ada Ayres will be seen in a new act, "Hard Boiled," written by Ben Ryan, one of Shubert vaudeville's favorite actor-authors. Mr. Matthews plays the role of a "cheap skate," with Miss Ayres doing the necessary "calling him down." It is a commentary on ladies who pay their own checks, dpsed of accomplishment is one of the two important things in the protean act of Arturo Bernardi, who will also be a feature the coming week.

GAYETY THEATRE

Dashing, snappy action, pretty girls, dazzling scenes, 1922 comedy, fitting music and spectacular novelties feature the brand new burlesque, "Flashlights of 1922," which are the attractions this week at the Gayety Theatre.

There is something doing every minute and enough surprises in the course of the two big acts to fill two shows. Reports from other cities are to the effect that this whirl of girls, dancing, melody and fun outdoes any other creations of the burlesque stage this season.

Richy "Shorty" McAllister and Harry Shannon head the big company of comedians, singers and dancers, and they set a lively pace for the other players to follow. There is a big beauty chorus, elaborately costumed and possessing excellent voices and real dancing ability. The chorus is always one of the biggest features of a burlesque performance, and the "Flashlights of 1922" chorus is one of the best ever assembled.

NEW CROSBY PLAY

Manager Clyde E. McArdle announces that on March 6 he will offer "My Greenwich Village Girl," a new play by Edward Harold Crosby, dramatic editor of the Post, being the fifth annual production to be presented by this organization written by Mr. Crosby. The play tells the familiar story of a country girl who seeks fame and fortune in the metropolis but unlike other plays with this theme, the little lady circumvents the snares and pitfalls.

FACTS, FADS AND FASHIONS OF BOSTON'S STAGE AND ELSEWHERE

"RED PEPPER," the gay and festive musical show at the Shubert Theatre, will warm you with its mirth and pep. Here's two very good reasons—the Fooshee sisters, who wind their winning way through the piece. It has every quality that makes for ideal entertainment.

ENID MARKEY, former movie star, who displays her talent to such good advantage with the Somerville Players. That's the movies' loss.

HE NEEDS NO INTRODUCTION! Every time Harry Lauder (gosh, we forgot the "Sir") comes to town it's an event. He will entertain here at the Boston Opera House, beginning the week of March 6.

AS G. B. S. SAYS: "You Never Can Tell!" Alfaretta Symonds is a burlesque chorus girl and she comes to Weidron's Casino next week. But who wouldn't say she's pretty as any in the haughty musical shows?

DID YOU EVER See an "Intimate Stranger"? We advise a trip to the Hollis Street Theatre, where you can find out all about it in detail. At the same time you'll canvass your eyes with a sight of Miss Billie Burke, whose work in "The Intimate Strangers" has won her wide approval. Here she is in one of the scenes in the play.

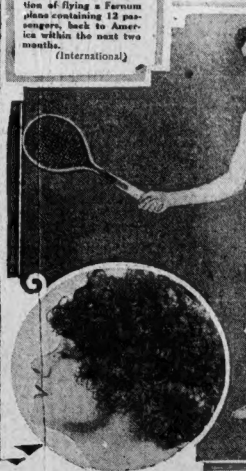
RADIANT! Walter E. Miller of Seattle, Wash., has invented a radio receiver small and light enough to be carried on the knee

SOMETHING WITH A KICK! Riding the "easy-going mule" is one of the experiences of the rookie aboard Uncle Sam's ships. Mr. Mule is getting all set to unseat Mr. Tar. Snapped aboard U. S. S. North Dakota, Guanta n a m o, Cuba.

TOEING THE MARK! This chap is a living lesson in courage. Louis Steinkegler, born without arms in German-Austria, set about patiently to train his toes to perform the tasks normally done by his hands. He paints, plays cards, writes and feeds himself with toes. (Wide World)

DON'T BLOW OUT THE GAS, MISTER! Glenn Hyder of Texas is nine feet one inch and is another one of the "tallest men in the world." He weighs 328 pounds, and is but nineteen years old. He says he's still growing. The other man in the photograph is six feet tall. (Fotograms)

PLANE FLIGHTY! Louis Geubert, former army aviator, who is now on his way to France with the intention of flying a Fernum plane containing 12 passengers, back to America within the next two months. (International)



MME. SAKHAROFF, daughter of Admiral Von Tirpitz, Germany's naval chief during the war, has quit society for a dancing career. Her interpretations are thrilling European capitals.

SQUASHED HIS RIVALS! Thomas R. Coward of Yale Club, new holder of the national squash title. Won honor by defeating Fillmore Van S. Hyde of Harvard Club. (International)

CODMAN AND SALTONSTALL ROW GROWS

Latter Unfit to Prosecute $4,000,000 Hampden Road, "Steal" Lawyer Charges

A bitter fight between Attorney Edmund D. Codman and District Attorney Endicott P. Saltonstall, in which Codman alleges Saltonstall attempted to intimidate and coerce Codman's counsel, Conrad W. Crooker, is revealed by the filing of a petition by Codman with the Supreme Court.

The fight concerns the eligibility of District Attorney Saltonstall to prosecute Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, members of the firm of F. S. Moseley & Co., and members of the investment boards of two Cambridge banks.

Indictments against these defendants for conspiracy and larceny in connection with loans to the Hampden Railroad were not pressed by former District Attorney William J. Corcoran a few days before he quit office. A mandatory order from the Supreme Court to require the Middlesex Superior Court to vacate the nol pros is necessary before prosecution may be begun.

CITES FAMILY CONNECTIONS.

District Attorney Saltonstall would naturally institute these proceedings and continue the prosecution. In the petition filed by Attorney Crooker for Codman, asking for such a mandatory order, Attorney Crooker sets forth that because of certain family connections, District Attorney Saltonstall is not a proper person to institute these proceedings, and he asks that the nol pros be set aside, Attorney General Allen be required to prosecute the indictments.

Attached to the petition are copies of correspondence between Codman and District Attorney Saltonstall, which Attorney Crooker alleges show further bias and prejudice on the part of District Attorney Saltonstall.

At a conference between Codman, Attorney Crooker and District Attorney Saltonstall at the latter's office, Attorney Crooker says he reminded Saltonstall of his family connections which are alleged to disqualify him. Richard M. Saltonstall, who is one of the attorneys of record for F. S. Moseley & Co., is a brother of the district attorney, and Sewell H. Fessenden, one of the firm indicted, is a cousin by marriage.

At this conference, Attorney Crooker says, District Attorney Saltonstall refused to appoint a special prosecutor for the case or to put the prosecution in the hands of Attorney-General Allen. District Attorney Saltonstall also "without any justification or excuse whatever and apparently for the purpose of intimidating and coercing counsel (Attorney Crooker)" declared that he would see that Crooker was punished for any false allegations concerning his the district attorney's attitude or conduct.

CODMAN EMBITTERED.

Later on, according to the attached correspondence, Codman requested District Attorney Saltonstall for a copy of the stenographer's record of this conference, Saltonstall refused it, and Codman replied acridly that he deplored the unfairness and lack of courtesy of the district attorney in refusing the copy.

The question of the fitness of District Attorney Saltonstall to conduct the prosecution of the indictments will be thrashed out before a justice of the Supreme Court when the petition is heard on March 7. Codman states that he files the petition merely in his capacity as a citizen.

The question of the recall of the nol pros presents a legal principle which so far as is known has had no parallel for four hundred years. In common law, a nol pros fraudulently or corruptly entered may be set aside by order of the court, but the law has never been called into force up to the present time.

Former District Attorney Corcoran investigated early in 1919 certain loans which were made by the Cambridge Savings Bank and the East Cambridge Savings Bank, through F. D. Moseley & Company.

The petition refers to the confession recently made by Corcoran to Attorney-General Allen in which, the petitioner says, is a statement of the corrupt nol pros of these indictments.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Smart Set Matrons Aid Home Service Fund Benefit

By BETTY ALDEN.

It is certainly a pleasure to be able to announce that practically the entire house has already been sold out for the monster theatrical benefit taking place next Tuesday afternoon at the Colonial Theatre. It is a pleasure because next Tuesday's event is to help swell the Red Cross Home Service Fund—which I have already explained at length.

I understand that a district war-time atmosphere will be noticeable in the foyer of the Colonial next Tuesday, when a group of members of the American Women's Overseas League will sell flowers. A prominent figure in the group is Miss Rosanna Thorndike of Beacon street, whose name has been closely linked with the good work done for wounded ex-service men. In the scene group with Miss Thorndike will be the Misses Helen Bradley, Marie V. Denervaud—newly elected president of the league—Elisabeth Huntington, Gilberta Define, Gertrude Merrill and Kair Hagen, all of whom will wear the uniforms in which they did such distinguished work overseas.

As the Home Service fund campaign has received the enthusiastic support of numerous society matrons, many of the latter have arranged box parties for the occasion, notably Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, Mrs. Gorham Brooks, Mrs. Eben Draper, Mrs. Clarence Edwards, and Mrs. Walter Bayles. Hundreds of the more seriously disabled war veterans who have not many chances to get away from the routine of hospital life will be guests of various individuals and firms who have contributed generously for this purpose.

Though the benefit next Tuesday is being sponsored by the Military Order of the World War, which is arranging all the details, an ardent worker for the success of the affair is Miss Dorothy Forbes of Milton. The latter, with James Jackson, is joint chairman of the Red Cross Home Service Fund and has given without limit of her time do raising the desired $100,000.

Miss Forbes it was who stated that there would not be the usual program with advertisements, but that to those desiring the privilege of entertaining either one or group of disabled men would be possible. As a result many firms and individuals have availed themselves of this opportunity, and have donated sums ranging up to $100 each for this purpose.

Thomas Lothian of the Colonial Theatre has secured several brightly-shining stage luminaries to contribute their services for the occasion. Among them will be the Duncan Sisters, Fred Stone, Mclntyre and Heath, as well as a host of others.

A group of women and young girls of the smart set are serving as ushers this morning at Exeter Theatre, where Lieutenant-Colonel Fearless's lecture for children is being given in aid of the Massachusetts League of Girls' Clubs. Among these ushers are Miss Dorothy Allen, Miss Pauline Dillingham, Miss Katherine Storey, Mrs. Gordon Allen, Mrs. H. Webb Hyde, Miss Katherine Weidmann, Miss Grace Monks, Miss Harriet Ross, Miss Elizabeth Piper, Miss Priscilla Jewett and Mrs. William Gagnebin.

The lecture is profusely illustrated with slides and moving pictures of the famous Pendleton Round-Up in Oregon. The Patronesses for the occasion include some of the most prominent matrons of the society elect. They are Mesdames Talbot Aldrich, J. B. Ayer, Orlo Bates, Hugh Bancroft, David Cheever, Roger W. Cutler, James Dean, George S. Derby, Marshall Fabyan, Conover Fitch, Charles F. Greenough, 2d, Henderson Inches, James Jackson, Jr., Malcolm Lang, James H. Proctor, Augustus Rantoul, Joseph S. Seabury, Randolph Tucker, Robert Walcott, Roger S. Warner and B. Loring, Jr. Also the Misses Eleanor Allen and Eleanor Fraser.

Miss Susan D. Lee, one of the most active members of the Vincent Club, will be the maid of honor and only attendant at the wedding this noon of her brother, Guy H. Lee, to Miss Simone Pailley of Grenoble, France. The bridegroom, a graduate of Harvard '16, has chosen as best man Raymond F. Baldwin.

Following the ceremony, which will be private, and take place at the rectory of the Church of Notre Dame des Victoires, the French place of worship on Isabella street, there will be an informal reception and breakfast at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Lee, at No. 403 Hammond street, Chestnut Hill.

The bride is the daughter of Professor Paul and Jeanne Pailley of Grenoble, and it is owing to their absence that the wedding will be private. The engagement of Miss Pailley and Mr. Lee was announced last September.

MISS ROSANNA THORNDIKE

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MANY society folk will be present at the wedding this afternoon of Mrs. James Mumford (Helen Bond) and Richard Henry Dana of Cambridge. The ceremony will be solemnized in Emmanuel Church. Mrs. Mumford, widow of the noted surgeon, Dr. James G. Mumford, has been a constant worker for reconstruction work in the devastated regions of France. Mr. Dana, a Harvard '74 man, holds memberships in the city's most exclusive clubs, including the Union and Exchange, as well as the Essex and Oakley County Clubs. He is also a member of the University and Harvard Clubs of New York.

Mrs. Lara Anderson and Miss Anna Hamlin, both of whom are well-known in Boston, were among the Washington guests at the annual luncheon—held recently at the capital—of the sponsors' society of the United States Navy. The luncheon was served in the Cabinet room of the New Willard, with forty members and a small company of additional guests present, including the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Denby. Following the luncheon, the guests all went on to the reception at the home of Representative and Mrs. Frederick Hicks.

Colonel Francis Appleton, Jr., of New York, who is well-known to the members of the Boston colony along the North Shore, will return to New York today, following a fortnight's stay in Aiken, one of the popular Winter resorts of the South. Mr. Appleton, whose parents have an estate at Ipswich, Mass., is a member of several Boston clubs, including the Tennis and Racquet and Myopia Hunt.

The Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge were the guests of honor for whom Mr. and Mrs. Cordenl A. Severance entertained on Thursday evening a dinner company of fifty-four in the Presidential suite of the New Willard.

The growth of the Palm Beach cottage colony is being demonstrated in the erection of many fine homes and the recent purchase of large tracts of land. The most important transaction recently was that by Blaine Webb for Leonard M. Thomas of a lot adjoining Mr. Thomas' villa on the lake front near the Everglades Club. Major and Mrs. Barclay Warburton of Philadelphia are the purchasers and have commissioned Addison Mizner to draw plans.

Invitations have been issued by Postmaster General Hays for a dinner on Friday, March 3, in honor of the President and Mrs. Harding.

The annual tropical ball of the Cocoanuts of 1923 will be held tonight at the Palm Beach Country Club. The costumes at this affair are always spectacular and the event is surrounded by much mystery. A number of dinners will precede the ball.

TWELVE RESCUED AT FIRE IN SALEM

Twelve persons, including six children, were carried or escorted over the roof of a three-story brick business block at Nos. 6 to 10 Central street, Salem, early today, by firemen when a fire threatened to destroy their homes.

Starting in the basement of the store of Savil Vasilious, a fruit dealer, the blaze spread to the first and second floors before being discovered.

PACT WITH NEW RESERVATION IS READY

Senator Johnson Plans Fight on Harding-Brandegee Clause

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee was expected today to order the four-power Pacific treaty reported favorably in to the Senate, probably with the reservations agreed upon by President Harding and Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut, attached to it.

Senator Johnson, California, Republican "irreconcilable" opposed to the treaty, planned to wage a fight for the adoption of the original Brandegee reservation to which President Harding objected and for which the Harding-Brandegee reservation was offered as a substitute. Johnson, expected, however, to be outvoted, as will Senator Pomerene, Democrat, Ohio, who intended to pres for the elimination of the words "no alliances" from the substitute and for the adoption of at least one reservation of his own.

It was understood that Senator Borah, Idaho, another Republican "irreconcilable" would first vote with Johnson for the original Brandegee reservation and in the event of its expected defeat, support the substitute not because it would alter his intention to oppose the Pacific pact but because he considered it would be a "good precaution" to have such a reservation adopted if the treaty was to be ratified.

While declaring that the fact that the new reservation stipulated that it was "the understanding" of the United States that the treaty provided for "no alliance" did not alter his opinion that an alliance was provided for, Senator Borah was said to regard favorably the other stipulations that the United States "understands" that the treaty makes no commitments for the use of armed force or for the defence of Pacific possessions.

CO-ADJUTOR BISHOP TO BE CHOSEN NEXT MONTH

A prayer service for the guidance of Episcopal ministers and laymen in the selection of a co-adjutor bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral rooms, March 6, at 10 a. m.

Candidates for this office will then be presented and considered. Among those suggested are the Rev. S. S. Drury, D. D., rector of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.; the Rev. Alexander Mann, D. D., rector of Trinity Church, Boston, and the Rev. Dr. Slattery, rector of Grace Church, New York.

COUNCILMAN WATSON SHAKEN UP IN CRASH

City Councilman James W. Watson was badly shaken up when an automobile which he was operating collided with a street car at the corner of Huntington avenue and Worthington street, Roxbury. Watson was turning into Worthington street in the rear of one car when he noticed another approaching on the opposite track. He swung his machine around, but not in time to prevent the right forward wheel from striking the car. The councilman, although shaken up, went to his home.

$3,000 ENOUGH FOR THEFT OF WIFE'S LOVE

New Bedford, Feb. 25.—Believing that $3,000 was enough to pay for stealing a friend's wife, Judge Henry F. Lummus in Superior Court has placed on file a statutory charge against William D. McDonald and Mrs. George H. Morrell of New York.

McDonald admitted his guilt, but ceased a bombshell into the prosecution's case when he told how he had paid $3,000 to Morrell in "settlement of all claims."

Ex-Senator Mantle at 70 to Wed 25-Year-Old Girl

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Lee Mantle, seventy years old, former United States Senator from Montana, admitted today that he and Miss Etta Daly, twenty-five years old, a graduate from the University of Nebraska, will be married within the next few days. The marriage license was taken out here yesterday.

Miss Daly formerly lived in Butte, where Mr. Mantle said he had known her family since she was a child.

"It's going to be a shock to some of my old cronies," he said. "I have a reputation as a non-marrying man. It's purely a love affair."

KERN WARNED MOTHER NOT TO TALK

Washington, Feb. 25.—"Don't say much to anybody, only to Mr. Rupp," is the warning carried by the third letter purporting to have been written by Martin E. Kern from Paris. This, like the "Dear Lawrence" letters, is published with the consent of the Department of Justice. "Mr. Rupp" is Lawrence H. Rupp, of Allentown, Pa., who has figured to date as Kern's attorney.

Kern fled from the United States as soon as it was learned that his relations with A. Mitchell Palmer, formerly alien property custodian and the sale of the Bosch Magneto Company were to be investigated.

In his first letter published, Kern referred to the "crumbling of my house of cards." In the second letter he urged his associates to go to certain high officials of the present administration and "put a high quietus on things."

Throughout the correspondence, the author of the letter makes it plain that he is in a state of mental panic. He admits that he is wandering aimlessly over Europe and apparently does not know that his every move is watched by agents of this government.

The third letter printed today is addressed to Kern's mother. It is written in German and is signed with the name "Edward." The translation follows:

Grand Hotel Meurice, Paris, Jan. 27.

"Dear Mother:

"Only a few lines to let you know that I am thinking of you. Landed here the day before yesterday. We had some lovely storms. If you want to write to me send the letters to William and have Raymond take the letter to Mr. Rupp and have Mr. Rupp mail it.

"Don't say too much to anybody, only to Mr. Rupp, and don't forget that all my enemies are trying to make you believe that I am Brother Edward and trying to make me suffer for his misdeeds."

BOBBY DYSON CONFIDENT HE WILL WIN FROM JOHNNY SHEPPARD

By JACK CONWAY

Bobby Dyson of New Bedford, a free hitting bantamweight, will have Johnny Sheppard of Woburn as an opponent in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Casino A. C. of Lynn on Monday night. As Sheppard is also one of those youths who delights in parading to close quarters and banging away with both hands, the fans should witness plenty of action.

Dyson's aim is to bust out a decision. Friedman for the New England bantamweight title. He believes that if he can win over Sheppard in decisive style he will be well on his way to accomplish his ambition.

Bunch O'Neil of Lynn will oppose Billy Nelson of Brockton in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Arthur Rose of the North End will meet Patsy Brannigan of Quincy, while Joe Fontano of Clinton will collide with Billy Robson of Malden.

It is interesting to note the swing of the batting fraternity to Nate Siegal, who battles Eddie Shevlin for the New England welterweight title at Mechanics Building next Tuesday night. Siegal's recent win over Tommy Robson and his great battle against Mickey Walker, although he lost the decision in this last encounter, have caused his stock to boom.

Shevlin always appeared to have the edge in the former bouts between these rivals. He even had a shade when they went to a draw at the Grand Opera House. Siegal invariably surged into the lead in the early rounds. He would then tire and Shevlin would come out into the lead. Siegal weighed around 145 pounds for these matches.

Siegal proved in his engagement with Robson that he does better at catchweights than when obliged to make a stipulated poundage. Nate was at 144½ pounds at 3 o'clock for his frolic with Robson. This probably meant that he scaled more than 150 pounds when he entered the ring. The bout next Tuesday night will be at catchweights, which is considered an advantage for Siegal.

Siegal believes that Shevlin is beginning to slip and argues that if he forces the issue in every round that his opponent will win in which event he will be able to surge to victory.

Shevlin has been training at Hanover, N. H., and contends he is in the best condition of his career. He points to the fact he has not lost a bout in more than two years, although he has been battling all-comers.

Secretary Lewis says he looks for the largest crowd to ever see an indoor bout in Boston.

The following explains itself:

"Jack Conway, Boston American:

"Any time you are in search of those foreign champions coming to Boston, I think that I should be the fellow to give them a try-out. If I did not think I could beat such light heavyweights as Gussie Frati of England and Spalla of Italy, who just came here looking for a chance at the light heavyweight championship, I would take a back seat!

"I have defeated a few of those foreign champions, such as Nick Burley of Alaska, in 11 rounds; Bill Squires of Australia, 14 rounds; Jack Palmer, England, 10 rounds, and Tommy Burns, the champion of Canada, after 20 hard rounds.

"So let's hope that if there are any more of these foreign champions coming here, that I should be the fellow picked out to give them a good try-out.

"Very truly yours,

"Tommy Burns."

The Riverton A. C. will stage an amateur boxing tournament at the Chelsea Theatre tonight. There will be contests at 112 and 135 pounds in the open classes and at 118 pounds for novices. Al Lacy announces that a large number of entries have been received and that plenty of spirited action is expected.

* * *

Young Donahoe, South End bantamweight, is finding more obstacles in his way when he attempts to secure a bout than the Germans did when they tried to reach Paris. All of our brave bantamweights get cold feet when Donahoe's name is mentioned, according to Tony Palazolo, manager of the South End boy. Palazolo says Freddy Madden, Barney McAfee, Johnny Sheppard, Tommy Nee and the other little men are also dodging Donahoe.

Dan Carroll writes that Tommy Nee is avoiding a bout with Barney McAfee. Carroll declares that Nee is in splendid physical condition and confident in his ability to crush any of the opposition. If McAfee is sincere in his desire to box, he might secure some consolation by battling Young Donahoe.

Tommy Walsh writes from Chicago that he expects to back Joe Burman, sensational Western bantamweight, at one of our local clubs in the near future.

Jackie Williams writes as follows:

"I was at the ringside at the Carlyle show Monday night, watching Jimmy O'Keefe of Chicago and Harry Mina of the West End perform. I had expectations of seeing a great fighter in O'Keefe, but the only thing great about him was his press agent. O'Keefe has symptoms of having been a great fighter at one time, but those days are long passed.

"Billie Woods, being an accommodating fellow, worked out with him one day at the gymnasium, and it is possible that he has knocked himself out of this match, as he is much too rugged for O'Keefe.

"Nothing would please Billie any more than to box him winner-take-all."

Felix King, the Berlin, N. H., welter weight who arrived in Boston and has placed himself under the management of Harry Kelley and Chick Hayes, King has never boxed in this vicinity, but has quite a reputation up in Maine and New Hampshire having knocked out Joe St. Heinire in eight rounds, Battling Downey in three, won over Dusty Diamond, and boxed draws with Billie Woods and Welter Butler. After a week's training he will be ready for any of the 150-pound boys.

Johnny Brown of Cambridge, who defeated Mike Castle and Mack Murphy during the past week, has been rematched to box Castle in Lowell before the Moody A. C. on March 3. After the match with Castle, Brown will go after a bout with Ray Chapman, Bobby Josephs or Mickey Travers.

GOLD, CLAIMING FOUL, REFUSES TO FIGHT

Referee McPartland Declares Lew Tendler Winner at Start of Eighth Round

By Universal Service.

New York, Feb. 25.—Lew Tendler of Philadelphia was credited with a knockout over Hymie Gold of Oakland in Madison Square Garden when the Californian refused to come out of his corner for the eighth round.

Gold asserted that he had been fouled by Tendler in the seventh round.

The bell at the end of the seventh round found Gold suffering with pain, and his seconds claimed foul. They yelled for the referee to examine the man but he disallowed the claim.

Gold then refused to come up at the bell in the eighth round at a suggestion of his seconds. Referee McPartland then walked over to Gold's corner and, while Tendler stood in the centre of the ring counted Gold out.

The latter was sitting in his chair when Tendler was declared the winner.

Tendler fought hard in the early rounds, and several times crowded Gold into a corner or against the ropes. Every time, however, the California boy fought his way out of the predicament. Gold retained his manner of calmness in spite of Tendler's blows, and his bold retaliation bloodied the Philadelphian's nose.

In the third round the first charge of foul was made—by the crowd. The spectators thought Lew was hitting low, but he stopped fighting, and, raising his hands, said: "I'm hitting fair."

In the fourth, Referee McPartland warned Tendler against hitting low.

Tendler tried a few lefts to the jaw in the fifth and the sixth, but both boxers confined their work chiefly to body blows. The sixth was a furious round, and Lew sent Gold to his corner tired.

Clonie Tate of Minneapolis won from Johnny Murray of New York in the opening bout of eight rounds. Jim Darcy of Portland, Ore., took an eight-round decision from "Arizona" Andy Smith of Oklahoma.

Old Billy Defoe was dusted off and sent against Chuck Wallace, a veteran in the semi-final bout of twelve rounds. Herman broke through for a marked advantage after the fifth session, and took the judge's decision.

The bouts were witnessed by a crowd of about 10,000 fans.

M'GRAW MAKING NO CLAIMS IN 1922 RACE

Winner of Seven National Flags Is Silent, but Team Shapes Up Well

By Davis J. Walsh.

New York, Feb. 25.—John McGraw is sitting pretty behind a world's championship ball club plus the off-season addition in Heinie Groh, ex-star of the Cincinnati Reds, yet he is making no brash prediction that might be construed as mentioning the Giants and the 1922 National League pennant in the same breath. John wants it pretty generally known that he is not that kind of a mean-key wrench.

Ask any baseball man what he thinks of the National League race this year, and he'll crook his index finger in your buttonhole and begin to tell you in a confidential whisp that the Giants will cake walk to the flag. Not so McGraw.

On the subject of pennants he has become as wary as a fox, a dodger, and not without reason. In all, McGraw has won seven pennants as the head of the Giants, starting with the 1904 championship outfit and ending with the team that came from the surreptitious rear to nip the Pirates at the wire last year.

But sour as a tenor's falsetto lingers a taste in the region of his soft palate, a constant reminder of the fact that he started the 1914 and 1915 seasons with prospective pennant winners and finished with much the same.

They never got beyond the prospective stage, in spite of the fact that they were supposed to be the class of the National League. It was merely a case of the records proving otherwise.

Wherefore, McGraw has decided to win no more pennants in mid-Winter, and if approached on the subject will do quite a lot of talking with his mouth shut.

He discouraged all talk of pennants during the off season while he was waiting around New York for the racing season to get a running start in Cuba; he avoided the issue whenever expedient if a conversation of the sort started in Havana and before he left to meet his players in San Antonio rendezvous he confided to a friend that he meant to do the same among his men.

If pressed for an answer he will admit that he has, perhaps, the greatest infield in baseball with George Kelly, Frank Frisch, Dave Bancroft and Heinie Groh ranging between the bags, and Johnny Rawlings, World's Series hero, available for utility role.

Perkins Post Boys to Hold Amateur Boxing Show

The Michael J. Perkins Post, A. L., of South Boston, expects to have a very successful boxing tournament at their next show on Monday. Entries have been received from amateurs from all the surrounding towns and the advance sale of tickets has been unusually large. The members expect to have a banner show.

The classes at 112, 126, 135 pounds and for heavyweights are popular with the boxers. Much enthusiasm is shown in the heavyweight division in South Boston as it will determine the most eligible men for the championship contest next month.

Entries will be received by Billy Roche at the Post headquarters, East Broadway, South Boston.

BOSTON STARS AFTER HONORS IN NEW YORK

Cutbill, Driscoll and B. A. A. Relay Team at N. Y. A. C. Track Meet

New York, Feb. 25.—Athletes of international, intercollegiate and national prominence will compete tonight in the annual indoor athletic meet of the New York A. C. in the Twenty-second Regiment Armory.

The feature events are the Baxter mile and the Dazincour "500," both annual fixtures on the Mercury Foot organization's board floor program.

These races, as well as the other events listed, will be run over a specially constructed banked track, upon which the use of indoor spikes will be permitted. The officials have limited the fields to four starters in these races.

Walter Higgins, Columbia star; Hal Cutbill, Boston's "Flying Parson"; Mike Devaney, Millrose A. A. runner, and Larry Brown, University of Pennsylvania, will toe the mark in the Baxter mile.

In the Buermeyer "500" the starters will be Bill Stevenson of Princeton, Jake Driscoll, Boston A. A.; Walter Koppisch, Columbia crack, and Andy Kelly, New York A. C. veteran.

A special sprint series at 50, 60 and 70 yards; a 70-yard high-hurdle race; a college medley relay and several handicap events have attracted a number of the country's foremost athletes.

Another feature will be the annual relay race between teams of the New York A. C. and Boston A. A. This event will be at two miles.

FITCHBURG BASKETBALL TEAM BEATS GARDNER

Fitchburg, Feb. 25.—Fitchburg won the championship of the Wachusett Interscholastic Basketball League by giving Gardner a bad beating last night. The score was 55 to 17.

Shea for Fitchburg, with eight goals and nine free tries, with a total of twenty-five points, was the high scorer. Hawkes got six baskets for twelve points and Greene of Gardner made three baskets.

Clinton and Leominster are the other teams in the league.

1,000 TEAMS IN BOWLING MEET AT TOLEDO

Preparations Are Made for Huge National Tourney of 5,000 Players

Toledo, O., Feb. 25.—The biggest bowling tournament the world has ever known will be staged in Toledo this year, starting February 26, if predictions of A. L. ("Abe") Langtry, secretary of the A. B. C., come true.

Langtry, now in Toledo, has been a hustling person since his arrival a couple of days last week, from which he has not fully recovered.

In case he does not wrestle tonight either Manager Norman Pike or T. O. Richards will represent Tech in that class.

F. R. Hereford will wrestle in the 158-pound class, Walt Kenneth in the 175-pound class and Tyson Nimick in the unlimited class.

TECHNOLOGY IN MAT BATTLES WITH TIGERS

Engineers May Not Have Captain Butler in Wrestling Meet With Princeton

Princeton and Tech wrestlers will meet on the Walker Gym mat tonight. Harry Bruner will wrestle for Tech in the 115-pound class, Francis Hazeltine in the 125-pound class and W. J. Weatherly in the 135-pound class.

Captain George Butler, 145-pound New England champion for the past two years, received an injury on his shoulder in Yale last week, from which he has not fully recovered.

In case he does not wrestle tonight either Manager Norman Pike or T. O. Richards will represent Tech in that class.

F. R. Hereford will wrestle in the 158-pound class, Walt Kenneth in the 175-pound class and Tyson Nimick in the unlimited class.

DEMPSEY IS TO SIZE UP GIBBONS AND GREB WHEN THEY BATTLE

By JACK DEMPSEY

(Heavyweight Champion of the World).

Tom Gibbons and Harry Greb will do a great deal to revive interest in the light heavyweight division when they battle in a fifteen-round bout to a decision at Madison Square Garden, New York, on March 13. As the proceeds of the contest will go to swell the New York Milk Fund, the boxers will help a worthy charity as well as furnish the public with a high-class ring contest.

I shall be at the ringside when Gibbons and Greb meet. I wouldn't miss this battle for almost anything. It is the most important contest between light heavyweights that has been staged in years. It should prove a furious engagement as well as attract a capacity crowd.

We have had many great light heavyweights in the history of the ring. There was George Gardner, Bob Fitzsimmons, Sam Langford, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Tommy Burns and many others.

Georges Carpentier, Gene Tunney, Greb and Gibbons are the best of the present day crop of light heavyweight. Carpentier is generally recognised as the world's champion as a result of his knockout victory with Battling Levinsky. Tunney won the American title by disposing of Levinsky.

Gibbons and Greb, however, stand out in the light heavyweight class. Either of these men would be a betting favorite if pitted against Tunney, while there are many expert followers of fistic affairs who figure that both Gibbons and Greb are better fighters that Carpentier.

It is very possible that I shall be called upon to defend my title against the winner of the Greb-Gibbons bout. Both men have an idea they can defeat me. As I have always been open to quarrel with all comers, all the winner of the big New York bout will have to do is to secure a promoter who is prepared to stage the tustle.

Between bouts Gibbons has spent his time in the Michigan woods, where he has attempted to put on some solid weight. He is eager to increase his poundage to 175 pounds. At this notch he believes he would be able to defeat me.

Greb, too, would probably try to put on weight if he were to battle me for the heavyweight title.

When I fought Carpentier I weighed 188 pounds. At this notch I was in the greatest condition of my career. I felt when I entered the ring against the Frenchman that I was in condition to defeat any fighter the world has known.

I am told that Sam Langford fought some of his greatest battles against heavyweights when he only weighed 160 pounds. Then there was Joe Walcott, who gave away often as much as fifty pounds and stopped his opponent.

I think that many of our present day boxing critics put too much stress on the weight of boxers. Of course I will admit that bantamweights and featherweights cannot afford to give away much poundage, but when you get to the lightweight class I don't think a few pounds difference in the weight of two men makes a whole lot of difference.

When I fought Jess Willard some of the experts really expressed sympathy for me on account of Willard's huge size. I personally thought that Willard's immense bulk was the chief thing in my favor. I proved my contention was correct by the quick way in which I disposed of the former cowboy.

I believe that either Gibbons or Greb would give me a tougher battle than Willard did.

As both men are determined to get a shot at my title, I shall have to study their styles when they receive 10 more pounds. At this notch I will give due consideration from Jack Kearns and myself.

OUIMET PICKED TO WIN IN TITLE GOLF

Boston Player to Meet Louis Jacoby in Houston Club Finals

Houston, Texas, Feb. 25.—Francis Ouimet of Boston and Louis Jacoby of Dallas will meet today in the final match for the championship of the Houston Country Club invitation golf tournament.

Ouimet, after a sensational match with George Rotan yesterday morning and C. G. Golding yesterday afternoon, won his way to the finals, while Jacoby eliminated Tom Cochran of Wichita Falls in 19 holes.

Ouimet generally is favored to win the championship, owing to the remarkable form he has shown under adverse conditions.

Jacoby, runnerup for the State championship last year and once winner of the invitation championship, is a dependable golfer.

The match will be 36 holes, 18 in the morning and 18 in the afternoon. Excellent weather tends to make a large gallery, despite the unfavorable weather. A slight rain, considerably colder than usual and a medium wind was the forecast.

GREEN FENCING AND GYM TEAMS OPPOSE HARVARD

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 25. — Dartmouth gymnasts and fencers left here yesterday to meet the Harvard gym and fencing teams today at Cambridge.

The meets of the two teams will be held in conjunction in Harvard's gymnasium.

The fencing team will have its first meet of the season. It is made up of Hertzberg, Liao and Cooke.

Rassieur, Olsen, McCollom, Beggs, Fraser, Dawson, Smith Schmidt, Taylor and Graydon will be the Green representatives in the gymnastic contest.

NAVY AND ENGINEERS MIX IN BOXING TOURNAMENT

The Navy and Technology will engage in a dual boxing tournament at Annapolis tonight. It will be the first sparring meet of the season for the middies.

The Engineers have made a fine showing in the light classes, especially in the Yale encounter and in several of the engagements at home.

Wills and Lindsey, Bob Smith of knockout fame, and Lew Phillips, champion of New Zealand and Australia, representing 115, 125 and 135-pound classes, respectively, Technology hopes to duplicate the feat of the Navy team which has practically new material in those divisions.

J. J. Hayes or W. C. Latta may be Lindsey's opponent. Walter Schald will fight the knockout lad, and either C. W. Alvord or T. R. Kurtz will meet Phillips.

Captain Ed Moll, 145-pounder of the Engineers, will oppose J. J. O'Donnell and Joe Horgan will be matched against Zotti, Navy captain, in the 160-pound contest. Joe Schoina, who represents Tech in the 175-pound class, will fight the winner of an elimination bout between McBride and O'Keagan.

The freshman combination will get the Yale cubs in Walker Memorial ring this afternoon. The representatives are: 115-pound cigs, Jim Woodward, Tech, H. E. Seifert, Yale; 125-pound bout: Captain Chatelain, Tech, and R. B. Tibbs, Yale; 135-pound bout: Al Nickerson, Tech, A. A. Albelli, Yale; 145-pound bout: Joe Horgan, Tech, and T. Pithlan, Yale; 158-pound bout: Bill Gow, Tech, and Captain Funk, Yale; 175-pound bout: Bernard Crandall, Tech, and F. S. Butterworth, Yale.

TECH BASKETBALL TEAM PLAYS AGAINST AMHERST

The record of one victory away from home for Technology basketball team is due to be lengthened when Captain Hubbard's aggregation runs up against the Amherst quintet on the latter's court tonight.

Amherst has played Tech on the Walker floor and lost, and also lost to Harvard on the trip to Boston two weeks ago.

The Engineers have a consistent string of home victories, having won nine games in succession.

PORKY FLYNN IN THE CARLYLE FEATURE

West End Heavyweight Will Try to Come Back Against Big Joe Burke

Dan (Porkando) Flynn, who shares the limelight with Martin Lomasney in the dear old West End, will attempt another little ring comeback when he mingles with Joe Burke of Detroit in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Carlyle A. C.'s show at the Grand Opera House next Monday night.

Flynn avers he has been training for two weeks and that he will breeze through to a victory over the husky from Fitzverville. As Burke won over Bartling Abrams and T. Pithlan, appearance here, he has hopes of upsetting the West End boy's plans.

Billy Brewster of Lynn will box eight rounds with Porky Diggins of New Bedford, while Steve Latzo of South Boston and Louis Leonard of the North End are also down to go eight frames.

Manager Bill Brophy has also signed Chick Suggs to meet Denny Edwards, the const star, in another ten-rounder.

BUFF SIGNS FOR TITLE BOUT WITH ROY MOORE

New York, Feb. 25.—Johnny Buff, world's bantamweight champion, has signed articles to defend his title against Roy Moore of St. Paul, in an eight-round bout in Jersey City the night of March 16. Buff recently returned from a trip overseas.

ENGLISH AND COMMERCE IN DUAL MEET WEDNESDAY

By FRED C. LANE

The English High-Commerce meet next Wednesday will give the ardent track fans plenty of thrills. Both schools have proved their worth in other meets and their engagement should draw out the best in each individual star. Coach Murray's boys regard Commerce as much of a rival as Latin. Coach Sherlock will send his lads against English with great confidence.

Brighton, South Boston and West Roxbury will have a triangular meet next Thursday. This will be followed by the Latin-Technical-Commercial affair on Friday.

With the exception of two other meets the trials and semifinals for the Regimentals will get under way by the middle of next month.

The triangular meet among Brighton, Hyde Park and Trades is booked for Monday.

Beginning March 1 Coach "Mugs" Donahue of St. John's Prep will start Spring football training. Every candidate will be the candidates to be present at lectures twice a week. These lectures will deal with the theoretical side of football.

The first part of April the squad will be outfitted and taken outdoors for practical work. This practice will continue until the Easter vacation, thus giving the boys about three weeks of drill.

It is thought the Spring work will develop some fine second string players of last season. Many first string players will be lost by graduation but a call for candidates will be arranged, the first four games being with Everett, Dean Academy Seconds, Medford and Beverly.

Joseph Dorsey, a Haverhill boy, is captain. Dorsey is a halfback, weighs 166 pounds and is exceptionally fast. He is a member of the basketball squad, playing guard. He also plays the outfield in baseball and last year was used several times as a pitcher.

A trip to the Harvard outdoor track at the Stadium will find many of our leading schoolboy runners taking advantage of the fine weather, preparing for the coming Regimental games next month. Boys from Latin, Commerce, Dorchester and many other schools can be seen going through regular routine.

Two weeks more of real competition [illegible] trict schools of the city will get under way will add to the efficiency of teams competing in the Regimental meets.

Should Cambridge Latin beat Arlington at hockey and win also from the Iroquois Indians, they will be matched with the best school team from Toronto.

RACE TRACK TAX BILL TO RAISE $300,000

Albany, Feb. 25.—Legislative leaders yesterday agreed to the Six Per Cent. Race Track bill introduced by Assemblyman Charles H. Betts, of Lyons.

This measure provides fro a gross tax on race track receipts, and is calculated to raise $300,000 as an offset to present State appropriations to county fairs and agricultural societies.

The Betts bill amends Chapter 40 of the Laws of 1909, governing membership corporations.

A similar measure was brought forward in 1921, but was killed through the protests of wealthy horsemen.

HARVARD BASKETBALL TEAM DEFEATS TUFTS

Harvard clearly outplayed Tufts on the Hemenway gymnasium court, winning by the score of 28 to 17.

The Crimson showed the better brand of team work, although it was far from the consistently good passing that has marked their work in recent contests.

Tufts' work was brilliant in spots, but their forwards failed to work together like the Harvard shooters.

Captain McLeish of Harvard was high man with 6 points for baskets from the floor and 10 from the foul line. Evans and Ravitch were the [illegible]

BOSTON UNIVERSITY MEN IN TRACK MEET TONIGHT

The Boston University athletes, who showed ability in the B. A. A. and American Legion meets are entered in the New England A. A. U. games tonight. Coach Hedlund expects his runners to pick up some points.

Donald Aiken is in the 880 yards run. Under Hedlund's tutelage he has improved and by his showing in the Legion games, it is expected that he will finish among the leaders. Aiken transferred from basketball to track when he found that the material for basketball was too abundant.

Bowan and Merriam will start in the mile run. Both have won handicap races. Bowan in Legion open, and Merriam in the mile handicap at the B. A. A. games.

Linnic and Captain Woodward will compete in the dashes. Woodward will also run in the 300-yard run. Sisc, and Sullivan are also entered for events.

BEZDEK AT WORK WITH PENN STATE BALL SQUAD

State College, Pa., Feb. 25.—Baseball practice is under way at Penn State and Hugo Bezdek is now holding daily workouts for his pitchers and catchers. Owing to the overcrowded condition of the gymnasium the battery candidates are holding forth in the stock-pudging pavilion.

Bezdek has a good pitching staff again this year, headed by "Cy" Mellinger, who was underrated last Spring. John Hunter and Miller are the other veterans from last season, and Longhurst. Traphoner, Fixter and a number of others show promise. Chal Hare, Ludwick and Hynes are the leading backstops in the race

Wakefield Team Wins

Wakefield High School defeated St. John's Prep School of Danvers in a dual indoor track meet 48 1-3 to 24 2-3 points.

FAVOR CORNELL TO BEAT BOTH HARVARD AND DARTMOUTH

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Two track meets for the price of one, is the offering at Mechanics Building this evening and a gathering of track fans that will tax the seating capacity and standing areas of the huge building will avail themselves of the bargain.

The annual Harvard-Dartmouth-Cornell triangular meet and the annual New England A. A. A. U. indoor championship meet are the two sets of track games that make up this double program, and thrills galore, rare competition and possibly a new record or two will give those in attendance sufficient to repay the cost of admission and the time spent at the hall.

Cornell, with a well-rounded track and field array, rules the favorite in the triangular meet, although astmouth is conceded an almost equal chance of gaining the high total of points, while Harvard is granted an outside chance of such an honor.

The Boston Athletic Association, rules the favorite in the New England A. A. U. championships, although Earl Thomson of Dartmouth, but not eligible to represent that college, may single-handed, outscore the Back Bay team. He will compete in four or five of the nine events and has shown sufficient ability in each to land a first, second or third place.

From a competitive standpoint the one-mile run and the forty-five yard hurdles in the triangular meet should prove the outstanding contests of the evening. In the former "Billie" Burke of Harvard, Charley Irish and Captain Strickler of Cornell are considered the leading contestants.

All three have done better than four minutes twenty seconds for the distance, and are reported as traveling at their very best, and from gun to tape their fight for plaves should produce those qualities in which all track fans delight.

The 60-yard hurdle event involving the college meet finds each team offering two or more starters of real ability, and while none is the equal of Earl Thomson, the winner last year one has equaled world's record time for the event while others have traveled within one-fifth or two-fifths of a second from the mark.

Harvard's representatives in this number are Dick Whitney, winner of the Milrose hurdles, and Carl Haserrs, a dual meet scorer last year; Dartmouth's reliances are Roger Harris, who has assumed Earl Thomson's place on the Dartmouth team, and Tom Anderson, who is credited with world's record time in the event; Cornell's delegates are Dave Kimball, who holds a schoolboy hurdle record, and Arthur Treman, who was a dual meet counter last Spring. These battles though the time and final heats offer rare possibilities and possibly a new record

Many other events on the double program may equal or surpass the thrills of the foregoing but as little information of the comparative ability of the respective competitors is available it is difficult to single out such as sure-fire thrillers

New records, however, are possible in several of their number. Captain LeRoy Brown of Dartmouth is considered capable of boosting the world's indoor high jump mark; K. P. Libby of the Green may set a new triangular pole vault mark; Earl Thomson of Dartmouth, competing in the New England 45-yard hurdle championship, may set a new world's record in that event; Jake Driscoll of Boston College, running in the New England 600, may achieve new world's figures in covering the distance, and Parson Harold Cuffill of the B. A. A., who equaled the world's 1,060-yard mark two weeks ago, is likely to lower that mark tonight.

The triangular meet really gets under way this afternoon at Cambridge, for in the Harvard baseball cage the pole-vaulters, thirty-five-pound weight heavers and the broad jumpers of the Crimson, Green and Red and White start the program, there being no facilities for the conducting of these events at Mechanics Building.

M. E. A. A. A. U. 16-pound shot put.

Note—The varsity pole vault, 35-pound weight throw and running broad jump will be considered at Cambridge during the afternoon.

Both Harvard and Dartmouth are hoping for a cleanup in these early numbers, and their representatives rule the favorites. The Green may run away with all three places in the pole vault, for Libby, Smith and Pope the Dartmouth vaulters, are all high by capable performers. Gunlock of Cornell and Davis of Harvard are considered the two non-Dartmouth contestants who may score.

Places in the thirty-five-pound weight throw are generally conceded J. Fiske Brown, the Harvard captain; Lee and Turnbull of Dartmouth, with the Crimson hurler the favorite. The broad jump, however, appears anybody's contest and it is possible Cornell will figure strongly in this number.

Should the Ithacans score any amount of points in these and the remaining field events, Cornell should land the meet in easy fashion, for its two distance runners and experienced middle distance stars are expected to take a majority of running events in handy fashion.

JAPONETTE By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

A Charming Romance of Society and a Woman's Way with a Man, by a Master of Fiction

THE STORY SO FAR

James Edgerton, 40, of an old and aristocratic New York family, returns to New York from abroad on hearing that the firm founded by his forbears has failed. He pays dollar for dollar and finds himself left with an inherited apartment luxuriously furnished, which an iron-clad will has entailed. With two dollars in his pockets he refuses the offer of an old-time friend to help, goes to the apartment, and finds it occupied by two charming young women, distant cousins, who beg him to forgive them for being there. They are as poor as he is and have advertised for a position, using the apartment as their headquarters. They ask him to let them stay until they get employment. All three form a partnership to seek work together. A position is secured with the family of Mr. Rivetts, rich, but ignorant of social customs.

DIANA glanced up then flushed.

"I was afraid for a moment that you meant it," she said.

"I do. What was it you asked me a few moments ago—whether or not I was something of a snob. And I was about to resent it—politely, of course—when it occurred to me that there was, after all, no more finished snob than the man who is so convinced of his own position that he can afford to like everybody; and I told you I liked that militia gentleman. I really didn't; I thought him the limit. . . . Diana, you seem to be a sort of truth compeller."

"I'm a liar, occasionally—to speak with accuracy instead of elegance," said Diana frankly. "I've managed to convey to you an idea that I am indifferent to your joining the firm of Tennant and Tennant. As a matter of fact, I'm flattered and happy. It's my conscience that protests."

"Your—what?"

Will Not Tell

"Conscience. Never mind—you won't understand, and I won't tell you. . . . After all, you are thirty-two, even if you happen to be an Edgerton."

"Are you jeering at me?"

"No, I am not. I'm flattered because you wear a distinguished name; I'm happy because I'm entirely inclined to like you. In fact, I'm a kind of a happy, little snob myself. There! we're all tainted with the same snobbish brush, cousin. Shall we take off our masks for a while and cool our faces?"

She rose with a gay little laugh and a bewitching gesture as though sweeping from her face an invisible wizard.

"Behold me as I am, cousin! Just what you have already divined me, with your eyes too humanly wise, too wise for a man of thirty—frivolous, feminine, not insensible to flattery, wise only in theory, a novice in practice—"

She hesitated, looking at him, the bright color in her cheeks.

"What silenced and dismissed me was that you divined it. I would have liked to have played a part with you vis-a-vis——"

"You're playing it now," observed Silvette. "Jim doesn't know what you are now; even I have doubts."

"Do I puzzle you, cousin?"

"Are you trying to?"

"Of course."

"Well, you've succeeded. You're perfectly right, Silvette; I don't know anything about her now. Are there any more rules you can assume, Japonette?"

"Many, monsieur. One of them is Japonette, if I choose."

"Play it," he said, "if you ever want to tie me to your obi."

"You behave," observed Silvette tranquilly, "like two rather ordinary young persons flirting."

"We are," nodded Diana, "but it won't last, Silvie. It's only my kimono and his thirty-odd years and the unconventionality that attracts him." She strolled about airily waving her fan. "Shall I mind being picked up——"

"Di! You'll give him a perfectly horrid impression of yourself!"

"Why, he knows I didn't mind it. It's past hulping now."

"How can a man 'pick up,' as you so disgustingly put it, his own cousin?"

"That was a triumph, wasn't it, Jim?" she asked innocently. "It remained for an Edgerton to accomplish the weird and impossible; but an Edgerton can do anything in New York—n'est ce pas? Bien, sure! Sure, Mike!"

"Diana!"

Feels Slangy

"Dearest, I feel slangy; and cousin James is so thoroughly a man of the world that he doesn't care. He wouldn't care what I did. I could perform a pas seul or a flip-flap or a cart wheel, and he wouldn't care. It's done in the best circles here, isn't it, cousin?"

"Frequently," he said gravely, "varied occasionally by volplaning down the banisters."

"There are no banisters here. Perhaps there are at the Rivetts'. Do you think it would entertain his guests? You know we are employed for that purpose."

"You and I ought to practice some acrobatic tricks," he suggested. "Do you think you could learn to throw a double somersault standing on my shoulders?"

"I can try——"

"Di! What on earth are you talking about!" said Silvette, turning from the piano to encounter their unrestrained laughter.

"Oh, dear!" said Diana. "I didn't know I could ever be silly again. I thought that being all our money a year ago had frightened it out of me; but it's there, cousin Jim—the same frivolity which you instantly discovered in me, and which the Rivetts will probably and properly squelch. . . . Silvie, this studio floor is delightfully waxed. . . . Cousin, do you dance?"

"Rottenly."

"Never mind. . . . Silvie, dear, one little waltz, please? Please? Thank you. Pull away that rug, cousin. Are you ready?"

"He is a rotten dancer," she said critically.

"I can't help that," said Diana; "it was the time and the hour. I needed it! . . . Jim, don't step on my toe, please, and don't think of stepping. You do well enough, really, you do. . . . No man who counts dances like a Turveydrop. . . . We use dancing men for dancing purposes only, . . . Of course you are flattered: I meant to flatter you, so you wouldn't be horrid enough to notice. . . . Please finish glaring at me; you are really giving me a great deal of pleasure."

"I begin to wonder whether I was not created for that, Japonette."

To Amuse

"To amuse me? Unintentionally? perhaps."

"So that you notice me at all, it doesn't matter," he said under his breath.

"Goodness! what meekness! Only that you're a typical man and don't mean it, I'd hate you for it. . . . A meek man—from him, good Lord, deliver us! . . . No, cousin, there is that in your eye which—and in your general makeup——"

"What?"

"Oh, I don't know—thirty-odd masculine years—very masculine—or I'd not be dancing with you, or I'd not be in this house at this moment; or, rather, you wouldn't. Stop grinning along in a horrid sort of self-satisfied prance! . . . And don't hop, either! Are you tiring?"

"No," he said bravely.

The Dangerous Age—to Man

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

© 1922, BY INT'L FEATURE SERVICE, INC.

THERE is a "dangerous" age they say. They mean, when folks say that, that there comes along a day sooner or later when even the soberest, ploddin'est, most consistently "same" person, man OR woman, is all ready and willing to do something that their friends never would have thought they would do—something, to say the least, well—queer!

Something unlike themselves—something that makes their family stay awake and wipe their eyes—horrified. It may be that the man who has gone to the office every day for twenty years suddenly drops the office flat and goes around the world—loafing and buying Japanese screens.

Or, maybe, the woman who has cooked and mended and not been out of her yard except to market since the children were small, joins a club and bobs her hair; and lays her family out in a row like stiff and dead herrings. Or, the bachelor who couldn't be suited, falls in love with somebody-that's-queer.

He does not seem to care if she cannot speak properly, and says, "I luv you," and "phare" for "where." This is a very dangerous-to-kind-old-gentlemen age. And the little scrapper of eight or ten, with his knitted cap over one eye and pulled to a bell at the crown where a ragged "tossel" flaunts itself at the world, with black mittens on his wet, cold hands—wet from pressing snowballs—with knickerbockers bagging over heavy stockings almost warranted not to wear out—almost—with one tooth out at just the lucky place for a whistle of surprise. What is woman's "most dangerous age" for him—who is his pitfall—who his snare—who the irresistible—who melts the heart in his breast—who finds his weak spot and lures him on to unmanly softness and showings of affection?

White hair and a rosy face, kindly blue eyes with wrinkles for the trails of smiles, unfashionable black jacket and a bit of a "fur-piece," a turban with its passe feather crowning the silver hair; dear, sweet old sixty-five with bundles, a warm heart with a cozy, lolly voice, with a spokie for a BOY! She is his dangerous age!

When you contemplate the "falls" there are, you think—all women—at all ages—are dangerous to all men!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

When a Girl Marries

An Interesting Serial of Love, Romance and Adventure

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1921, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"WELL—I ain't," he flung back at me. "So, begging your pardon, ma'am, I'm going to keep on keeping in right with this Hedwig. And if you'll only believe in me enough to stop my Bertha from flying off the handle about it, I'll be more than a little grateful. You'll do that, even if you do think I'm a bit notional, won't you, ma'am?"

"I'll do that," I chuckled openly now. "But I think you're worrying over nothing, Lyons. Bertha never mentioned you except loyally and devotedly. She didn't suggest suspicions."

"Yes'm," he said submissively and respectfully. "But if she shows signs of tantrums you'll know how to handle her."

Then he stood in silence until I gave the order to drive me back to Haldane's and so to the second amazing interview of that afternoon.

When I walked into Carl Booth's office at 4 o'clock it was with the firm determination to ignore the scene he had made in the morning, and to proceed on a basis of business plus as much of our old friendship as I could in dignity show.

I came armed with papers, a file of letters, tabulations, notes and manuscript. Carl met me, armed with a rigidity and a tense adherence to the matters at hand. Things went along smoothly and without any of the hysteria which being Jim's wife has taught me to dislike.

So when Carl and I concluded our business I arose to go with a barely repressed sigh of relief. Then, without looking at me, or getting up, Carl asked in a muffled voice:

"If you've forgiven me, why go without a handshake?"

"There's nothing final about this goodby," I said lightly. "I'll be running in often to see about my copy, and I'll probably have a lot of tangles for you to straighten out. So, instead of shaking hands for a goodby, let's make it a grip of good will—sent in a strong cup to the new firm. And don't think I'm not grateful to you for getting me the Derringforth Shoe Company's business."

Carl fitted a worry-creased face. "I could travel under false colors," he said, in a strange tone. "I didn't get you that account for any Sir Galahad motive."

"Please don't be morbid," I said with a touch of impatience.

"I'm only truthful." Carl protested. "Of course I'm jealous. I couldn't see because that fat frog of a Hoadley doped out this corking idea for you to go it on your own. Yet I was glad to see you leave here because I couldn't trust myself. And then I got sick because I'd let you cut yourself off from me and land something far better through an old guy whose attitude toward you is a mere business one. So I hauled down the Derringforth account. And—that's the whole miserable truth about me, Anne."

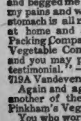
WORKING GIRLS LOOK HERE

Read what Mrs. Lucas Writes Concerning Her Troubles, which May be Just Like Yours

St. Louis, Mo.—"I had troubles that all women are apt to have, with pains in my back, weak, tired, nervous feelings and a weak stomach. I had been this way about a year and was unable to work or stand on my feet for any length of time. My husband's aunt told me how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her and begged me to try it, so I did. All my pains and weakness are gone, my stomach is all right and I do my work at home and also work for Swift's Packing Company. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. LULU LUCAS, 7194 Vandeventer St., St. Louis, Mo.



Again and again one woman tells another of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

You who work must keep yourself strong and well. You can't work if you are suffering from such troubles. Mrs. Lucas couldn't. She tried our Vegetable Compound and her letter tells you what it did for her. Give it a fair trial now.

Best Recipes

The following are winners of one dollar each in the Boston American's Best Recipes:

Creole Shrimp

One clove garlic, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup tomatoes, 1 small onion, salt and red pepper to taste, 1 cup canned shrimp, 1 cup French peas. Fry the onion and garlic in the butter, but do not let them brown. Mix in the other ingredients and cook in a double boiler for 15 or 20 minutes.

LET YOUR CHILD GROW

AN ARTICLE EVERY PARENT SHOULD READ

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever

DO not keep your baby on the bottle after he has become a big, red-faced romping boy.

Do not compel your boy to wear ringlets down his back after he is big enough to start to school.

Do not try to keep your husky seven-year-old in the house playing with spools or rocking horses when he could be outside doing his turn at an amateur ball game.

Do not call your young changeling daughter "Jenny," after she begins to grow natural blushes and is all the time writing it "Genevieve" in her school books.

Do not call your son "Tommy" after the young fellows begin to address him as "Tom" and he inscribes it it everywhere as "Thomas."

Do not force your bean-pole thirteen-year-old daughter to wear her hair in hanging braids while her chums are parading in their fashionable combed tresses.

Do not keep your tall fourteen-year-old gently "following in Papa's footsteps," when he ought to be out frequently making some big, rough tracks of his own.

Do not hold your fourteen-year-old daughter in a demure spinster atmosphere in order to keep her out from among the motley, boisterous young crowd.

Thus we might continue with an endless string of "don'ts" in relation to the child, but the short list above will illustrate the idea intended to be advanced here. The moment you retard the normal social experience of your child, there begins the development of an eccentricity in character.

From each age to the next is a definite forward movement of the mind as well as the body. The children themselves set the standards for the several ages. The moment they drop one interest for the next it becomes to them a "baby" affair.

Woe unto your own child if he now lingers with the despised attitude or thing. He will be teased, taunted and quickly disqualified by the others, as their play fellow.

It is better for your boy to get out with the crowd, to become innocently "wild and woolly," and to acquire thus the rough knocks which seem essential for aggressive manhood than to be held at home in the exclusive company of father and good books.

In short your child must be privileged to trail along with those of his mental and physiological age. Do the best you can to bring him up with the crowd and in rather strict deference to their opinions. It were better for him to be just fairly good among happy companionships than perfectly good—good for nothing—by remaining a shut-in.

WARDING OFF PLAGUE

By Brice Belden, M. D.

TUBERCULOSIS is due to the failure of nutrition; it is the result of starvation. Either the individual has not gotten enough food of the right sort, or for some reason he has not "gotten the good" of his food.

The lungs become susceptible to this disease when the blood and tissues are impoverished through inefficiency of the digestive functions.

The germ which causes tuberculosis invades practically every human being. Why does not everybody become actively infected? The answer is that the mere planting of the seed does not result in disease unless the soil—that is to say, the tissues of the body—has been prepared for it.

Even if the germs do manage to get more than a foothold in the bodies of the strong, nature is usually equal to the emergency, destroys the invaders, and repairs the local damage. Nature does even more than this. She sets up a special immunity to future attack, much in the nature of a vaccination.

When we spoke of preparation of of the soil for the seed, we meant that which results from unhygienic living and failure to maintain a good style of nutrition. Anything that causes physical depletion predisposes to tuberculosis.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Test of Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A girl of twenty-seven became engaged to a man of thirty about a year ago. The young man was called to service in a foreign country and under the circumstances they agreed to break the engagement, although he claimed he loved her and was willing to marry her and take her with him. Through a change in plans for which he was not responsible he was not called to go after all. Now, though he meets the girl in a business way several times a week, he has never referred to their former relationship or treated her other than as an old friend. The girl is heartbroken and it is hard for her to meet him in that way.

How would you advise the girl to act or what would you advise her to do? C. P. C.

POSSIBLY the man feels that the girl failed him and her promise of love when she did not try to arrange to marry him and accompany him on his projected trip across the sea. Men have their pride too, you know. If the girl's love is greater than her self love, she might suggest to the man that she'd like to see him at her home and have a chance to resume the old friendship. After all, suppose she is slighted—won't the quick, sure wound be better than wondering and torturing herself with the possibilities of the situation? An invitation to call is encouragement—but it can't be called "running after a man."

A Soft Shirt

Salesman—Soft shirt, sir? Will you have a soft or a stiff front?" Customer—"Soft, I think. The doctor said I must avoid starchy things."

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

Four U. S. government ships have just been bought to displace four Japanese ships in the Pacific trade. The purchaser is the veteran Robert Dollar, who somehow contrives to keep on expanding his operations through boom or panic. He has been chartering nine Japanese ships to carry lumber between the Pacific coast and the Orient. The four ships just acquired will enable him to give up four of these foreign-owned vessels.

I had a brief chat with Mr. Dollar yesterday before he boarded a train for San Francisco, following a session he had at Washington with President Harding and Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board. Mr. Dollar admitted that he would not have dared to buy these ships in face of all the uncertainty as to how this country is to deal with its merchant marine unless he had a "backdoor" he could get through if driven to it, meaning that if the American government made it utterly impossible to operate ships under the American flag, he could change his plans and operate them under another flag. Mr. Dollar has vast interests in Canada as well as in China and other parts of the world.

Incidentally, Mr. Dollar declared that Chairman Lasker has agreeably astonished shipping men by the ability he has shown in handling all the tremendously complicated shipping problem. What Congress may do, however, Mr. Dollar and all real men can hazard a guess. That something needs to be done is emphasized by the fact that no less than two-thirds of all our American-owned shipping is today lying idle.

No American has a deeper knowledge of Oriental affairs than Robert Dollar. For many years China's governmental authorities have sought his counsel, and he has visited the latter time and time again; his steamers run something like 1,500 miles up the Yangtse River, and he has his pulse continually on sentiment in the Orient. Now read what he said to the yesterday concerning the danger of war between the United States and Japan:

"Without question America and Japan were drifting into war. That something would have occurred to start hostilities was inevitable. The Washington Conference, notably called chiefly to settle naval matters in the Atlantic, was meant mainly to devise ways and means to eliminate the war peril in the Pacific—where, you will have noticed, our principal naval fleet had been sent.

The conference has accomplished its chief purpose. Japan has made a grand bargain, since she needs a longer tear damager of war with us. China, too, has fared far better than anyone could have expected. The dominating consideration was to get Japan to loosen her hold on China. The twenty-one demands were impossible. The conference has restored China off on the right road. Restoring the province of Shantung, with its population of 44,000,000, is important thing for China. Japan will also fare better under the new arrangement than she would have fared by persisting in her former policy toward China, a policy that was bound to lead to war, involving several nations."

* * *

Those looking for securities likely to become valuable in the course of the next year or so should investigate the status of various low-priced railroad stocks. The earnings on several individual paying stocks are distinctly more than the earnings on the shares of what for more than a generation has been called "the premier railroad of America," namely, the Pennsylvania.

"One by one they fall around us"—the bucketshops. Although many thousands of unfortunate investors and speculators are involved, it is best for the country that every one of the unscrupulous brokerage concerns should be wiped out of existence. The evil has become more widespread than probably ever before. Happily, however, it is being attacked at the time with unusual thoroughness, unusual intelligence and unusual co-operation on the part of all the exchanges and the criminal authorities. The results promise to be correspondingly effective.

If legislation be deemed necessary, then it should include compulsory registration and licensing of every individual and every firm and every company selling securities to the public.

The authorities, very properly, will not grant a bank charter to any group of men until they are satisfied that the applicants possess the right kind of character. Unscrupulous brokers have even more opportunity than unscrupulous bank owners for robbing the public of their money. It is a tremendous crime to close bank notes. Why should it be a less heinous crime to issue bogus stock certificates and sell them for $1, $10, $50 or $100?

It is to be hoped that the authorities will throw into jail every broker proved guilty of criminal conspiracy. It is high time that a stop were put to brokerage houses going ahead fast and furiously, scooping in the public's money and then, when about ready to collapse, allowing principal instigators of the fraud to "withdraw" from the firm with richly lined pockets.

A cheering word from J. G. Anderson, automobile manufacturer of South Carolina: "I am glad to be able to say that things are a great deal better. We are beginning to get some 'real' orders. I think prices have struck bottom and that the public is coming into the market."

Isn't it a pleasure to run across a big, busy business man who finds time to think of others and do little or nothing for himself? Hershey of chocolate fame. The model Hershey community is in Lebanon Valley, Pa. The whole community lives in an atmosphere and an environment very different from the ordinary factory town. As much thought is given to the comforts, the health and the well-being of the workers as to the profit-making. In addition to the model homes that is done to make life bright and pleasant in Hershey, there is one activity worth bringing to the notice of other men of large means.

Briefly, Mr. Hershey is giving free education to almost 1,000 boys and girls. They are instructed in some occupation or mechanical trade, and in agriculture and gardening. The finished boys are admitted as young as three-and-a-half and up to six years of age. The place is made as homelike as care and affection can make it. The boys are given a thorough preparation, under the ablest of instructors, for high school and college work.

I am told that Mr. Hershey derives as much satisfaction from what he has been able to do for his large family of adopted orphans as he derives from any other interest in life.

Herein lies a tip for wealthy men and women looking for a worthwhile source of genuine happiness.

Stocks Close Strong in New York; Trading Is Active on the Advance

STEEL ISSUES KEPT UNDER PRESSURE

Low Priced Rails, Oils and Motors Up; Profit Taking Reduced Gains

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks closed strong in New York, but profit-taking near the end reduced gains and final prices were a little below the highest level of the morning. Trading was active, approximating half a million shares for the brief session. Mexican Petroleum was strong, and Pray Oil, Baltimore & Ohio, Pierce Arrow, ePre Marquette and Standard Oil of New Jersey finished with gains of a point or more. Tobaccos were weak. American Tobacco showing the largest loss. Foreign exchange was strong, demand sterling rising to $4.41 during the morning.

Prices were higher at the opening with the exception of independent steel issues. They were still under selling pressure. Crucible sold at a new low for the current year. There was a slight reaction from the start.

But the market was on a higher level within thirty minutes and strong and active when the session ended. Specialties of from one point to more than two points were made during the first hour by Baldwin, Studebaker and Southern Pacific. Common and preferred, Houston, Pacific Oil, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Sloss-Sheffield. There were weak spots, and among losses to sag from one to three points were Crucible Steel, Cuba Cane preferred, National Enameling and Gulf States Steel. Oils, rails and steels showed the most group activity.

The covering movement which began this week continued over the last session and was the main reason for the advance. The bear contingent is heavily committed and showing considerable nervousness. The market was withstood in an astonishing manner some of the worst reports ever madeb y industrial corporations. Railway shares are much more free of present than for many months. Despite business depression there is more disposition to speculate. This is particularly apparent in low-priced rails.

PRICE MOVEMENT IS IRREGULAR IN BOSTON

The Boston market was irregular all the forenoon and trading rather narrow and of ordinary volume. Island Creek and John T. Connor Stores were features. Both sold at new record high prices. Rails and copper were very dull, with little price change. Packing issues were more active. Swift broke over up 3 at the close, Connor Stores 2½, Amoskeag 4 and Edison 1½. Among larger losses were Calumet & Arizona 3, Calumet & Hecla 2, Wickwire 1¾ and Quincy and Shattuck 1½.

The curb market was quiet and irregular. Active issues were Boston & Montana, Gray Rock and Tonopah, all at the close included Southern States 3 cents at 29 cents, Eureka 1 cent at 23 cents, Homa 1 cent at 7 cents, Jumbo Verde Development ¾ at 4½, United Verde Extension ¾ at 28½, and City Service ¾ at 51. Preferred issues were Gray Top 7 cents at 22 cents, Mohican 2 cents at 51 cents, Boston & Montana 2 cents at 98 cents, Boston & Montana 2 cents at 41 cents and Chief ½ at 2½.

Steel Trade Improves

The Iron Trade Review says there has been a substantial gain in the trade, Jeffery industry and mill operations are expanding. It reported that ingot production generally may be placed 50 per cent. to 55 per cent. Independent works in Youngstown district are on the highest basis since December, 1920.

City and County Loans

Newton, Mass., has sold a temporary loan of $200,000, dated February 28, maturing November 16, 1922, to Plymouth County Trust Co., Brockton, at 4.275. Also to Brockton Exeter County, Mass., has sold a temporary loan of $100,000 maturing November 15, 1922, to Gloucester National Bank at 4.100 per cent. discount.

Peabody, Mass., will receive proposals until 8 p. m. February 27 for the purchase of a temporary loan of $200,000, dated February 28 and payable November 15, 1922.

Railroad Items

While Delaware, Lackawanna & Western gross decreased $741,456 in January, this road showed $117,000 in net operating income.

Car orders since January 1 are estimated to total 20,000 cars, of which 12,000 are coal and but 2,838 for industrial concerns. Freight traffic is running about 10 per cent. ahead of the same period time last year. Bank of Italy's report for 1921 showed that its loans on St. Paul road is more than 20 per cent.

BUCKET CROOKS GET BUSY

WHIL ship is AGAIN GET BUSY

Bound to Renew Swindling Game Unless Public Is Protected, Says Spillane

By RICHARD SPILLANE

Philadelphia, Feb. 25.—Incidental to his address at the Business Science Club luncheon at the Adelphia on bucket shop men, Harry Thayer of West & Company, told of a pamphlet which a bucket shop house has warning the public against dealing with houses of questionable repute and advising that the reliable members of the shamfit come to them with their money.

"Dogs go nearest to be robbed; comes to us," might be a fitting summary of the advice given, for the concern that issued it was "known up" and while Mr. Thayer did not name the sender his description tallied with that of an "investment bankers" whose picture has been in the Rogues' Gallery at the City Hall for several years.

PLAYING BOTH ENDS.

Mr. Thayer was clear and comprehensive in his description of the methods employed by the fraudulent shops. In some of his details such, for example, as how the swindlers advised half of their customers to buy and half to sell and then impressed upon the "winners" the accuracy of the "tip" information furnished by them, and how the swindlers then counselled half of the "winners" to "let it ride" and the other half the direct opposite, again stressing upon the "winners" how much good was the guidance they received and then how they operated and repeated until all were cleaned out and fresh groups of "suckers" were recruited for the same treatment, he was particularly good.

That the crooks are earnest workers, Mr. Thayer made certain, for one of their "salesmen" got him on the phone at his home and tried to rope him in, not recognizing him as a partner in a New York Stock Exchange house.

But while Mr. Thayer's address was illuminating it was, in fact, a post mortem. Bucket shops will blossom again unless radical steps are taken to protect the army of the gullible. He did not outline anything in particular that is to be done to prevent a recrudescence of the great evil.

BANKERS CAN HELP.

Bankers can do much if they realize their full duty in the matter. A banker has a right to know the character of business in which his depositor is engaged. Very respectable banks carried the accounts of some of the worst bucket shops until that have gone to the wall recently. A bucket shop is a deceiving concern. A bank has not right to afford any facility to it.

Ron Pedersen's there was printed in this column a suggestion made by a public-spirited citizen. He laid down his broad principle that a crime has attained success owes a debt to to society, and he should give of his time, his wisdom and his experience what he can for the public good.

It was to the effect that men of eminence and proved ability should be asked to establish a bureau or agency which would be available for advice and direction in financial lines. This bureau should keep track, through a staff of trained agents, of every kind and class of stock and bond issued. Its province should be not to advise the public what to buy, but what not to buy. It should be able to warn the public against houses of questionable repute or lack repute. It should be able to warn bankers against having dealings with concerns whose practices were suggestive of fraud.

OPEN TO PUBLIC.

Its offices should be open to all the people and its services should be given without charge. It should be conducted with full appreciation that the whole public welfare depends upon it through any fraud perpetrated on the public and that it is the duty of the strong to protect, so far as possible, the weak or ill-informed.

Such an institution, properly managed, would be a great safeguard against fraud. If it were vigilant it would make this territory unprofitable for the crooks. It would receive many complaints, gather evidence and command action by the banks, the exchanges and the public authorities.

It could be maintained by publicspirited citizens and its costs, if well distributed, would burden no one.

It should be an honor for any man to be asked to serve on it.

So far nothing more constructive and protective has been suggested. Bucket shops somehow circumvent the laws no matter how well drawn, but they cannot do much business if they are barred by the banks.

Banks need some authority for putting on such a ban as would be necessary in the cases. An organization such as suggested, maintained unselfishly by public-spirited citizens for the protection of the public would seem to be sufficient authority to justify action by the banks.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW York, Feb. 25.—In spite of exhibitions of puzzling irregularity the stock market as a whole Friday showed a continuance of the firmness that has characterized the general list recently, and a new volume of trading was well maintained. There were several instances of marked weakness, but these appeared to be due to special causes, some of which were a matter of public knowledge, while others were based largely on surmise. Decline in the Republic Iron & Steel issues, of course, was caused by the unfavorable earnings statement and the omission of the preferred dividend, which evidently came as a surprise. The assumption that a similar fate may be in store for Crucible stockholders was responsible for heavy selling of that issue. Various conjectures were advanced for the sharp break in U. S. Retail Stores, one being based on smaller earnings by United Cigar Stores and another claiming that a decline in the values of securities owned by U. S. Retail might necessitate a downward revision of surplus.

THE steel group generally suffered from the weight of selling induced by the Republic Iron & Steel incident, but aside from Crucible and Bethlehem B the effect was not pronounced.

U. S. STEEL yielded only moderately, and good buying was noted on the setback. Similarly, American Tobacco ignored the decline in Retail Stores, which showed relatively pronounced strength were Market Street Railway issues, Mullins Body and Computing. Recording to reports, Mexican Petroleum and Mexican Petroleum were the strongest of the list. The motors were featured by Studebaker and Chandler, the former crossing par by a wide and showing considerable steadiness notwithstanding its rejection of a point.

MORE attention is being devoted to the rails and before the middle of the session several of the favorites in this group had moved to new high level among the features were Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, pfd; Rock Island, Southern Pacific, Delaware and Lackawanna and Delaware & Hudson.

THE advance in the Federal Reserve

ratio to a high level of 77 per cent. this week registers a gain of 1.7 per cent., and compares with a ratio of 75.3 per cent. last year at this time. The improvement results chiefly from a decrease in deposit liabilities, while a slight reserve is made to appear good. Rediscounts show a decline of $60,000,000 on the week, this reduction since the first of the year of $450,000,000 and of $2,010,000,000 from the high record established in January last year.

IRREGULARITY was the outstanding characteristic of the trading. Notwithstanding the strength was manifested uniformly throughout any one group. The independent steels showed pressure in response to the action of the directors of the Republic & Steel Company's passing the preferred dividend. U. S. Steel, while yielding from its best prices, was in excellent demand throughout the day and its loss at the close was trifling.

AFTER the early unsettlement in

Republic issues, during which the preferred showed a loss of nine points and the omission of five, Chandler Motor and Studebaker were advanced to new high prices for the present movement. While this advance was taking place selling orders in large volume appeared in United Retail Stores which resulted in a decline in that stock to a new low level. American Tobacco during this decline advanced to 140¾. These were fairly typical movements in the day's market.

THE annual report of the Chandler

Motor Car Company will probably be made public Monday. It is expected to show net profits of about $2,000,000 or $3 a share on the stock compared with $4,213,111 or $13.04 per share in the previous year. This, however, must be considered in the history and in no wise reflects the present day situation. Within the past few months from orders now on the company's books probably will exceed the full year's dividend requirements. The company has no current bank loans and both its cash and inventory conditions now are of the strongest. Buying of the stock Friday, as the result of reports mentioned, was said to be for the account of interests identified with the company.

STUDEBAKER crossed par on buying by the same group which has dominated its market movements. There is every reason to believe that extra dividends will be declared during the year and that stock will benefit holders 13 per cent. The present movement in largely of a seasonal character. It will be remembered that last year, a year of liquidation, the price was advanced 36 points in the March-April rise, and the quotation for Chandler was advanced 26 points. A similar campaign is understood to be contemplated.

THE same powerful interests which have been accumulating Rock Island again were buyers of the preferred, although there was heavy profit-taking around 62. This is the highest price reached by Rock Island since 1918. The strength is due in part to favorable car movements figures published Thursday night. Buying orders appeared in considerable volume from Middle West points.

INTERESTS familiar with the tobacco

stocks are frankly disappointed at the failure of Retail Sales to increase. The decreases reported by the United Cigar Stores Company, which is the stock book of United Retail Stores, had not been expected to occasion surprise, according to those sources. The turn in trade which had been anticipated has not occurred. It is said, and current business is reported to show steady decreases. The has led to a discussion of the possible action to be taken by the directors when they next meet to act on the dividend. Selling was reported as of excellent quality and was taken to foreshadow a substantial reduction, possibly the omission of payments.

WHEAT MAY GO STILL HIGHER, SAYS EVANS

Chance for Millers and Farmers to Make Upward Drive as in 1917

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—A man who is thoroughly versed in the game, and who has been a tremendous bull on wheat, indicated his opinion that the advance had gone far enough

It was inferred from his attitude that he still fully appreciated the statistical elements going to make a high quotation for this cereal and the same sentiments recently set forth regarding the position of the commodity still stand good. There has been no error in the calculations and nothing has now arisen that should change opinion on the subject.

Any standaber, however, can readily see that a price which has gone up 40 or 50 per cent. is logically not so strong a price as it was at the start. It is believed that several of our heaviest operators are still long of wheat and likely to continue so for an indefinite period. The shrewd speculator, however, knows pretty well when to take a profit.

BUCKETERS LOSE HEAVILY.

It is understood that the bucket shops have had a large part in the rise in wheat lately, that is that they have been heavily short on the accounts of their customers. Their losses must be enormous heavy and it would be surprising if a number of them were not thrown out of business.

Possibly this situation is counting for something in the minds of the heavy men from the fact that a break of that sort is not of the strong kind. The same is thought to be true of the stock market.

One extremely interesting item of history is brought to mind in this connection. Repeatedly it has happened that after speculators had taken the session interest of the favorites in this group had moved to new high level among the features were Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, pfd; Rock Island, Southern Pacific, Delaware and Lackawanna and Delaware & Hudson.

THE advance in the Federal Reserve

ratio to a high level of 77 per cent. this week registers a gain of 1.7 per cent., and compares with a ratio of 75.3 per cent. last year at this time. The improvement results chiefly from a decrease in deposit liabilities, while a slight reserve is made to appear good. Rediscounts show a decline of $60,000,000 on the week, this reduction since the first of the year of $450,000,000 and of $2,010,000,000 from the high record established in January last year.

IRREGULARITY was the outstanding characteristic of the trading. Notwithstanding the strength was manifested uniformly throughout any one group. The independent steels showed pressure in response to the action of the directors of the Republic & Steel Company's passing the preferred dividend. U. S. Steel, while yielding from its best prices, was in excellent demand throughout the day and its loss at the close was trifling.

AFTER the early unsettlement in

Republic issues, during which the preferred showed a loss of nine points and the omission of five, Chandler Motor and Studebaker were advanced to new high prices for the present movement. While this advance was taking place selling orders in large volume appeared in United Retail Stores which resulted in a decline in that stock to a new low level. American Tobacco during this decline advanced to 140¾. These were fairly typical movements in the day's market.

THE annual report of the Chandler

Motor Car Company will probably be made public Monday. It is expected to show net profits of about $2,000,000 or $3 a share on the stock compared with $4,213,111 or $13.04 per share in the previous year. This, however, must be considered in the history and in no wise reflects the present day situation. Within the past few months from orders now on the company's books probably will exceed the full year's dividend requirements. The company has no current bank loans and both its cash and inventory conditions now are of the strongest. Buying of the stock Friday, as the result of reports mentioned, was said to be for the account of interests identified with the company.

STUDEBAKER crossed par on buy-

ing by the same group which has dominated its market movements. There is every reason to believe that extra dividends will be declared during the year and that stock will benefit holders 13 per cent. The present movement in largely of a seasonal character. It will be remembered that last year, a year of liquidation, the price was advanced 36 points in the March-April rise, and the quotation for Chandler was advanced 26 points. A similar campaign is understood to be contemplated.

THE same powerful interests which have been accumulating Rock Island again were buyers of the preferred, although there was heavy profit-taking around 62. This is the highest price reached by Rock Island since 1918. The strength is due in part to favorable car movements figures published Thursday night. Buying orders appeared in considerable volume from Middle West points.

INTERESTS familiar with the tobacco

stocks are frankly disappointed at the failure of Retail Sales to increase. The decreases reported by the United Cigar Stores Company, which is the stock book of United Retail Stores, had not been expected to occasion surprise, according to those s

NINA KOSHETZ SYMPHONY SOLOIST

Russian Prima Donna to Sing at Next Concerts of Boston Orchestra

Nina Koshetz, the Russian prima donna, who is a newcomer to this country, and who in her own land is placed before all others as a singing actress and interpreter of song, will be the soloist at the next pair of Boston Symphony concerts, which will take place next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, March 3 and 4. At these concerts she will sing with the orchestra an air from the opera, "The Czar's Bride," by Rimsky-Korsakoff, now (without words) written especially for Mme. Koshnetz by Prokofieff, the talented, daring, young Russian composer, who is now residing in this country, and Moussorgsky's Revery and Dance from "The Fair at Sorotchin."

A new work to be performed for the first time in America at these concerts will be Skalinsky's Two Fragments from the Ballet, "The Laundry Maid's Rachel." Lazare Saminsky, the young Russian composer and pupil of Rimsky-Korsakoff, is so far almost unknown in the new world.

Handel and Haydn Concert.

Dvorak's "Stabat Mater" is the splendid oratorio chosen by the Handel and Haydn Society for its fourth concert of the season, which will take place in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, March 12, at 3:30.

Emil Mollenhauer, conductor of the society, is rehearsing a great chorus of 400 in this music, together with a large symphony orchestra. A splendid quartet of soloists will also be heard. The soprano will be Helen Stanley, first famous as the prima donna of the Chicago Opera Company. The contralto will be the only newcomer of these soloists, Kathryn Meisle, a young American singer, whose voice is beautiful in quality. Arthur Hackett, the tenor, is well known hereabouts by his former appearances in oratorio. Clarence Whitehill is perhaps the most splendid bass singer in the country.

Bauer—Casals

The coming joint appearance of Harold Bauer and Pablo Casals should attract one of the most beautiful concerts of the season. They will play together in Symphony Hall on Saturday afternoon, March 11, at 2:30.

Butt—Rumford

Remembered enthusiastically by her appearance in this country a number of years ago, the return of Clara Butt, the great English contralto, will doubtless be welcomed when she plays here jointly with Kennerley Rumford, the distinguished baritone who is her husband, in Symphony Hall, Sunday afternoon, March 19, at 3:30.

Last McCormack Concert

John McCormack, the great Irish tenor, will give the last one of a series of three concerts in Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. He will be assisted by Donald McBeath, violinist.

Josef Hofmann

At his only recital in Boston this season, Josef Hofmann, the great Russian pianist, will play in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, March 5, at 3:30. The splendid program chosen by him for this occasion will include:

Variations in D minor.....Handel
Sonata in A major, Op. 101.....Beethoven
Polonaise in E flat minor.....Chopin
Nocturne in B major.....Chopin
Mazourka in C major.....Chopin
Kreisleriana.....Schumann
Etude.....Debussy-Hofmann
Don Juan Fantasy.....Mozart-Liszt

Ethel Hutchinson

Ethel Hutchinson, the young pianist, who is to make her concert debut at Jordan Hall on Saturday afternoon, March 11, is well spoken of by those members of the musical fraternity who have had her coaching as she does from Boston's most famous piano atelier, that of Heinrich Gebhard, and with his commendation, technical proficiency is looked for.

Wilhelm Bachaus

Boston concert attendants will, undoubtedly, remember the visit of Wilhelm Bachaus, when he first came to America eight or ten years ago, then in his twenties. He recently again appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and is to play a recital program on Saturday afternoon, March 4, a program that fully exemplifies his catholicity.

London String Quartet

The London String Quartet have made a special study of Beethoven's quartets and played them in all parts of the world. And the last pair of performances on the evenings of the week of March 13 to 18 and on Saturday afternoon at Jordan Hall is truly deserving of patronage. This Boston Beethoven festival is bound to prove but a repetition of the great success the Londoners achieved in New York, Edinburgh, Leeds, Stockholm, London, etc.

Pelzer Recital

Next Tuesday evening, February 28, Mr. John Pelzer, a baritone who gave a recital last year with credit to himself, will sing a program of interesting pieces at Steinert Hall. Three Boston composers are represented on this occasion.

The third concert by the Burgin String Quartet will be given at Steinert Hall on Friday evening, March 10. Mr. Ignace Friedman will be the assisting pianist.

Mengelberg Coming

The long-awaited opportunity to hear and see William Mengelberg conduct the orchestra in Boston is being presented on the occasion of the fifth concert of the season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, at Symphony Hall on Thursday evening, March 16, when he comes here with the combined forces of 110 musicians of the New York Philharmonic and National Orchestras. Mengelberg has devoted himself especially to the study of Richard Strauss, it seemed proper that he select one of this composer's works, and accordingly "Till Eulenspiegel" will be the piece de resistance at this particular concert. Incidentally, it should be mentioned that Mr. Strauss dedicated this number to Mr. Mengelberg and his Amsterdam orchestra.

ORPHEUM HAS VARIETY OF GOOD ACTS

"Conceit," a Stupendous Film With All-Star Cast is Leading Feature

A splendid variety of high-class vaudeville and feature photoplays makes up an attractive program the coming week at Keith's Orpheum Theatre. For Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Manager Morris will screen Select's studendous photoplay "Conceit," with an all-star cast. This photo drama gives an intimate picture of society life in the metropolis.

The leading characters are enacted by players of long experience in addition and as a whole the production is one of the most compelling of the current season. Vaudeville is by Claudes Moore and Pardo, two jazz boys in hilarious and jazzy bits; Jean Boydell, Whalen and King, England's Premier Dimeaise, Brown's Educated Marines and others. The feature of the latest world events in motion pictures and a new comedy completes the bill. On Thursday the usual change takes place, the feature photoplay being "Chivalrous Charlie," with new vaudeville. As usual the Sunday concert will be given.

WALDRON'S CASINO

"The Maids of America" in their laughing-success, entitled "Pol Dollies" is the big burlesque attraction on the continuous program at Waldron's Casino this week.

The combining of burlesque, vaudeville, and motion pictures into one mammoth performance has made a hit with theatre-goers of Greater Boston and Waldron's Casino has become one of the most popular theatres in the city. Each day the schedule of varied fun begins at 1 p. m. and it continues without a letup until 10:30 p. m. The burlesque, vaudeville and photo play features are of the best to be obtained.

In keeping with the high quality of the attractions which have been shown at Waldron's Casino always, and especially since the inauguration of the continuous performance policy is "The Maids of America" burlesque, with its company of pretty girls and six scenes. Comedy and music of a pleasing sound in this merry production.

The burlesque is the work of William K. Wells who is noted for his ability to produce burlesques that achieve instant success.

The opening scene of "Pol Dollies" as presented by the "Maids of America" company is entitled "The Coon Club," and it is replete with laughable situations.

GLOBE THEATRE

Announcement is made that William Fox's new spectacle "Over the Hill," dramatized from Will Carleton's "Farm Ballads" comes to the Globe Theatre for a brief return engagement, beginning Monday with a continuous policy beginning at 10:30 a. m. and continuing until 10:30 p. m. at night. This photoplay, which earlier in the season scored a sensational triumph, depicts the story of mother love divine. It will be recalled that "Over the Hill" attained a similar run at the Globe and at the six different Broadway theatres in New York city and since that time has scored equally wherever shown.

DR. GRIGGS' LECTURE

"The Inferno" will be the special topic of the lecture to be given by Dr. Edward Howard Griggs at Tremont Temple on Saturday afternoon, March 4, and should prove one of the most interesting of the series. Dr. Griggs will explain the morals of Dante in his journey through Hades, which was for the purpose of studying the different kinds of evil in generation and the possibility of regeneration. He will point out the various forms of vice encountered, the degrees thereof, and the extenuating circumstances which led to wrongdoing.

"FOOLISH WIVES"

At the Park Theatre Monday, March 6, Carl Laemmle will present a mammoth picture especially entitled "Foolish Wives." The picture comes acclaimed as an unusual achievement in picture making, and, moreover, it is said to substantially convince the spectator of its producer's claims that more than $1,000,000 was spent in its making. As chief protagonist of its story there is Erich von Stroheim, an actor who has so perfected the enactment of despicable wickedness and depicts a villain of such profundity of evil that he has been freely termed and capitalizes the expression, "The man you will love to hate."

BOLM BALLET

An announcement of particular interest is the one made by the Secretaries of the appearance at the Wilbur Theatre on Monday afternoon, March 6, of the Adolph Bolm Ballet Intime, accompanied by the Little Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Carlos Salzedo, the celebrated harpist.

HILL'S "WALTZES" PLAYED BY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

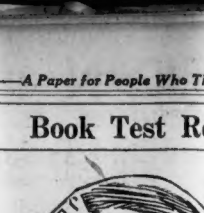
Mr. Monteux chose for his symphony yesterday afternoon the Schubert "Unfinished" symphony, in spite of the fact that its four movements are sometimes considered a bit too long, in this case, the audience applauded to such an extent that the conductor returned to the stage twice and finally called the entire orchestra to acknowledge the appreciation. Quite right.

The "Waltzes for Orchestra" by Frederick Phillipps, Canadian leader, also followed the symphony and it was received very cordially. The musicians of the New York Philharmonic and National Orchestras, who recently disconnectedly constructed but they were popular and Mr. Hill acknowledged from his seat the long-continued applause.

The most brilliant thing of the afternoon was the Rimsky-Korsakoff "The Russian Easter" and this Mr. Monteux made very vivid and full of the most fascinating splendor of contrasting color.

On the whole, the concert was a decided success. The program will be

Book Test Revealed



Correct Title—The Conqueror

Jenghis Khan (1162-12). Mongol emperor, is called "one of the greatest conquerors the world has ever seen." Born and nurtured as the chief of a petty Mongolian tribe, he lived to see his armies victorious from the China Sea to the banks of the Dnieper.

FIRST DRAWING IN NEW TEST WEDNESDAY

The picture reproduced here today is another example of the problems which will be placed before those readers of the Boston American who take part in the $5,000 Famous Titles Test.

That Test will begin in these columns on Wednesday of the coming week. It will be the biggest ever conducted by this newspaper. Any reader of the Boston American anywhere in New England or Canada may take part in it.

You will observe that this drawing bears the name of Jenghis Khan. This was the only hint the artist gave of the Correct Title. "The Conqueror."

In the List of Titles which accompanied this Book Test pictures on Friday, January 13, was the title "The Conqueror." One or two other titles in the list may have had an appeal but this was the Correct Title.

DRAWING NO. 1 ON WEDNESDAY

The Famous Titles Test will be very much like the Book Title Test. Drawing No. 1 will be printed next Wednesday. With it will appear a List of Titles. In that list will be the Correct Title. The Famous Titles Test will continue for sixty week days, one drawing and one List of Titles each day.

You will enjoy the Famous Titles Test. You will enjoy the search for the Correct Title. There will be a lot of fun. It may bring you a handsome reward in cash, for the Boston American will divide $5,000 among the 319 participants who stick to the end and, in the Test, send in the largest numbers of Correct Titles. These are the awards:

FIRST AWARD	$1,000
SECOND AWARD	750
THIRD AWARD	500
FOURTH AWARD	400
FIFTH AWARD	300
SIXTH AWARD	200
SEVENTH AWARD	150
EIGHTH AWARD	100
NINTH AWARD	50
100 AWARDS OF $10 EACH	1,000
110 AWARDS OF $5 EACH	550
TOTAL	$5,000

SPORTSMANSHIP NEEDED.

You will observe that the prizes number 319. There will be hundreds of contestants. Many of the titles will be easy to get. Others will be difficult. The highest score made by anyone in the three Title Tests which have been held in the past year is 319 correct titles. The reason why you cannot equal, or even better, this record for your first try at a Famous Titles Test the average amount of general information, good judgment and a willingness to study the List of Titles and KNOW their contents.

You may not, and probably will not, always agree that the artist has made a good job of his subject or that the Test Editor always shows discriminating care in his selections for the Lists of Titles. Bring with you that spirit of true sportsmanship; remember that thousands of others will have their eyes upon the same goal. To the winner, the Boston American will pay One Thousand Dollars in cash. To the two hundred and eighteen other leaders the amounts specified above.

The $5,000 Title Test is an "extra added attraction" of New England's best and largest evening newspaper. It will cost nothing to take part in it, for the Test is an entertainment placed before you in addition to all the news and other features provided in your favorite newspaper. One may take part in the Test, indeed, even if he never buys a copy of the Boston American. How? By making pen-and-ink or pencilled copies of the Test Drawings from the possession of some friend. Excellent copies may be made by using rotating-paper-cuts as is used in the schools. Any number of these copies may be used in a set of answers sent in at the close of the Test. All sixty of your drawings may, indeed, be copies made in this manner. The design is to make these Title Tests free to all. They cost nothing.

RE-CHECKING GOING ON.

The nine leaders in the recently concluded Book Test will hear from the Book Test Editor for some time next week. The checking of sets of answers has been concluded and a rechecking now is in progress. The highest score of Correct Answers is 35.

It is not too early to make one important suggestion to every reader of the Boston American, whether or not he intends to take part in the $5,000 Famous Titles Test:

On Wednesday of next week there will be a greatly increased demand for this newspaper's practically very newsstand in New England. Batting for the additional $5,000 soon to be divided by those who have taken part in a Membership Competition, a great number of Book Testers have been interesting New Contestants—half of them new readers, perhaps—will be with us next Wednesday. Today is a good time to remind your regular dealer that you are his regular customer. Give him to understand that YOU must have YOUR Boston American on Wednesday and every other day.

PLEASE SEND IN NAMES.

The Test Editor will appreciate it if all who have not done so already will today send in the names of the friends they have interested in the new Test. This request is made and dressed to those who have seriously gone after the $10 awards. THEY will want all the time they can have. THEIR lists must be in this office not later than Wednesday. Others—for who have the names of two, three, four or five New Contestants—will receive a favor on the Test Editor if they will send them in at once.

At the conclusion of the Famous Titles Test the Test Editor hopes to be able to follow the same course as that which has been pursued since the close of the Book Title Test. That is—if no objection is raised by contestants—to reprint the Test Drawings with their Correct Titles and to print also the letters in which contestants describe the title the artist, the editor and the proceedings in general. Thousands of you have written to testify that you have enjoyed this Open Meeting quite as much as the Test proper.

Book Test Editor:

Well, Old Sport, I skidded frightfully on number 19. Bet I'm just as if someone had greased the rails under me and my sandbox was empty. I'll bet I'll be alone. As my score stands this morning I shall have to have all the remaining titles right to land among the 319, but if I sail you can bet your old shoe I will make this artist hustle to the Famous Titles Test. Longing to be in it for fun. It may bring you a handsome reward in cash, for the Boston American will divide $5,000 among the 319 participants who stick to the end and, in the Test, send in the largest numbers of Correct Titles. These are the awards:

Yours truly when you hear me firing on all six.

I do want to say that I have found both pleasure and knowledge in the Title Tests. They have been clean and aboveboard from start to finish. Your artist sure knows his business. Hats off to him.

W. K.

Dear Test Editor:

Your attached letter received and no more kick will be registered. I have been in the Title Tests and my score has improved each time, so look out, Mr. Artist, in your next one. I'll start your little fun a trifle earlier than No. 30.

The "kicks" registered by me from time to time have been made for the purpose of giving information that might be helpful next time. Thank you. C. Hudson.

Dear Sir:

I have not always been made happy by the Correct Title as it has been "revealed" to us and I am now convinced that I am not going to finish with the leaders, but I think this is the time to thank you for a most enjoyable experience, the Book Test. I like the way it has been handled, from the beginning. I like this method of discussing it in the open. I do not suppose you have been able to print more than a very small proportion of the letters but those that have been printed have been amusing or helpful, sometimes both. I never knew a newspaper conducted where the problems were repeated or reprinted in the way and the whole thing threshed out in public. I like the method.

It seems to me a big and just as the newspaper which employs you. Keep it up. Don't get discouraged. Remember that no matter what you do you cannot please everybody. Remember, further, that it is quite natural that contestants, and more particularly the novices and the younger element, should feel a bit put out or disappointed on finding themselves almost but not quite among the leaders. Good luck.

Dorchester. F. M.

TEST EDITOR GRATEFUL.

The Test Editor is grateful to F. M., and to many others who have written in similar vein. He has not been able to find room for any large proportion of the letters he has received, but he can truthfully say that he has answered every letter sent to him since the Book Test began. The records show—the figures may not be without interest—a total of 4,650 personal replies mailed by the Test Editor since Drawing No. 1 was printed on Monday, November 7. Every inquiry answered, when the matter was thoughtful enough to give an address.

The awards in the $5,000 Membership Competition depend, of course, on whether your New Contestants go through with the Test Titles to the end and at its close submit each a set of answers. Whether they have done this cannot be determined until the Famous Titles Test is over.

When the last minute for sending in Famous Titles answers arrives, then, the work of verifying your Enrollments will begin. The results of the Membership Competition, therefore, should be known two or three weeks before the close of the Famous Titles Test is announced.

Late next week, or very early in the week following, the Story of the Book Test will be printed. Names and addresses of the 319 winners. Pictures of the Nine Leaders. Numbers of the drawings on which those leaders "fell down." Complete list of the INCORRECT titles submitted by each of the nine.

Keep smiling! Keep up your courage! You'll have another chance at Mr. Artist and the List of Titles be-

PROPOSALS

CITY OF CAMBRIDGE.
Office of the City Engineer, Feb. 23, 1922.
Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the City Engineer, City Hall Annex, for furnishing and delivering as ordered for the year ending January 31, 1923, about one hundred and twenty-two thousand (122,000) feet of spruce lumber.
Specifications for furnishing the lumber and for sawing, also for furnishing and delivering the same, may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer.
Each bid must contain the full name of every person interested in the same, and must be signed by the party making the bid or by his duly authorized agent.
Each bid for one or more items is to be accompanied by a certified check for 2% of the amount of the bid, payable to the City of Cambridge, as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract with the City Engineer, if the contract is awarded to him, and will give a bond for the faithful performance of the contract. A satisfactory bond will be required for the faithful performance of the contract by the person or persons to whom the contract is awarded, and the amount of the bond will be fixed by the City Engineer with the approval of the Mayor. The check of the successful bidder will be returned to him within ten days from the date of notification of award of contract, and the checks of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned upon the signature of the contracts; and in case of failure or neglect to enter into the same, the bid will be considered as having abandoned it, and the check and the amount thereof will be forfeited to the City of Cambridge as the City Engineer reserves the right to reject any and all bids in accordance with and as required by the 1911 Ordinance. It is understood that the parties, in presenting their proposals, do so on the express terms that the same are offered subject to the provisions of the Ordinances and Regulations hereof.
Proposals to be addressed to E. M. Hastings, City Engineer, and endorsed "PROPOSALS FOR SEWER MATERIALS."
E. M. HASTINGS,
City Engineer.
